

University of Nebraska at Omaha DigitalCommons@UNO

Latino/Latin American Studies Faculty Proceedings & Presentations

Latino/Latin American Studies (OLLAS)

6-10-2014

Three things to remember about Latinos in Nebraska

Lissette Aliaga-Linares University of Nebraska at Omaha, laliagalinares@unomaha.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.unomaha.edu/latinamstudfacproc

Part of the Latin American Languages and Societies Commons

Please take our feedback survey at: https://unomaha.az1.qualtrics.com/jfe/form/

SV_8cchtFmpDyGfBLE

Recommended Citation

Aliaga-Linares, Lissette, "Three things to remember about Latinos in Nebraska" (2014). Latino/Latin American Studies Faculty Proceedings & Presentations. 6. https://digitalcommons.unomaha.edu/latinamstudfacproc/6

This Presentation is brought to you for free and open access by the Latino/Latin American Studies (OLLAS) at DigitalCommons@UNO. It has been accepted for inclusion in Latino/Latin American Studies Faculty Proceedings & Presentations by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@UNO. For more information, please contact uno digital commons @unomaha.edu.

Three things to remember about Latinos in Nebraska

Lissette Aliaga Linares

OLLAS Research Associate

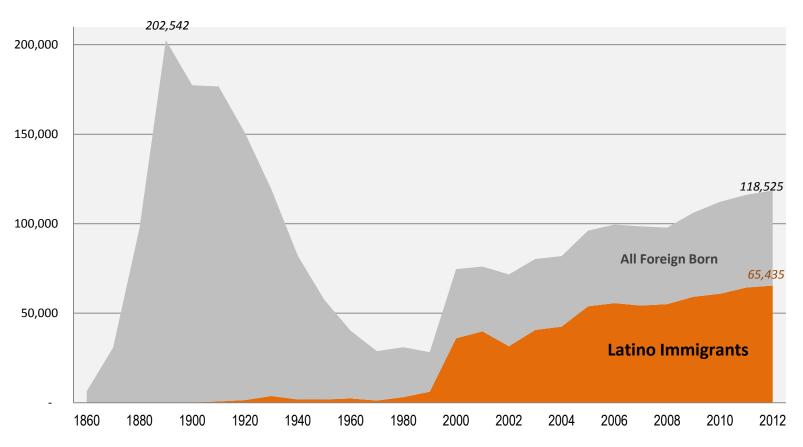

June 10th, 2014

1.

While the latest immigrant wave in Nebraska have an important number of Latinos, it is not the largest wave of immigration experienced in the state.

1.a. As of 2012, the foreign-born population in Nebraska is around half of what it was before 1900s. Latino immigrants have increased heavily since 1990s, representing around half of the foreign born population in 2012, but their numbers are far from reaching the numbers of European immigrants that came around the 1890s.

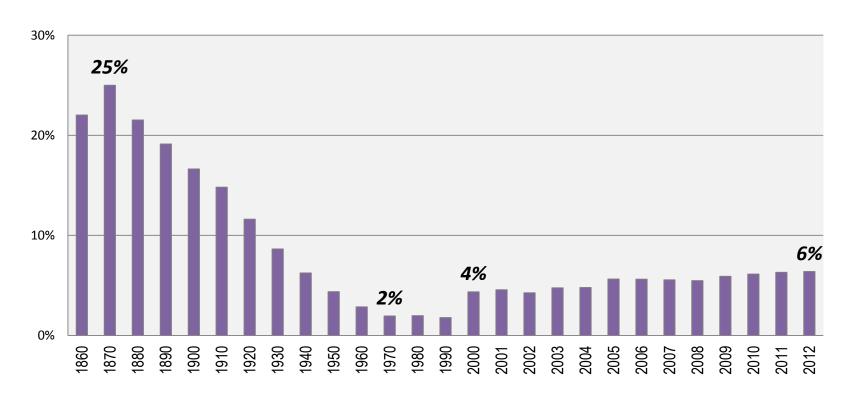

Figure 1: Total Foreign-Born and Latino Foreign-Born Population in Nebraska, 1860-2012

Source: OLLAS Calculations based on IPUMS-ACS 1860-2012

1.b. The share of the foreign-born in the total population of Nebraska does not reach the levels before 1900s. Compared to 1870 when a quarter of Nebraska residents were foreign-born, the share of foreign-born population in 2000 was only 4%, and has remained at around 6% since 2005.

Figure 2: Share of Foreign-Born Population in Nebraska, 1860-2012

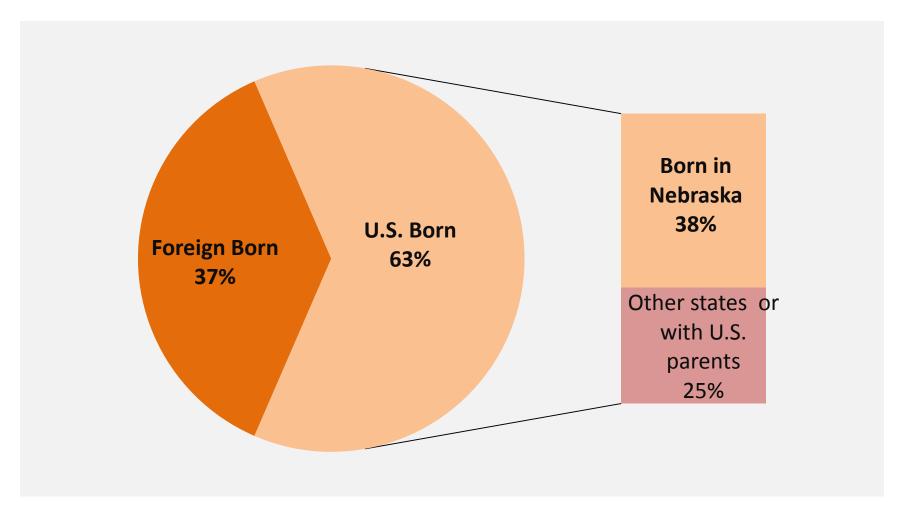

Source: OLLAS calculations based on IPUMS-ACS 1860-2012

2.

Contrary to popular belief, most Latinos in Nebraska are U.S. citizens and have a long history in the state. 2.a. Three-in-five Latinos living in Nebraska were born in the United States. Two out of these three U.S.-born Latinos are Nebraskans by birth.

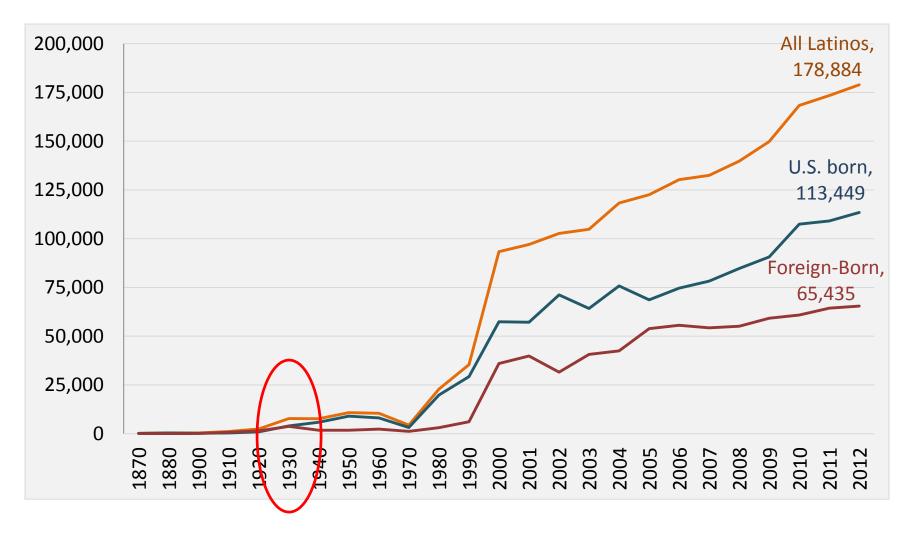

Figure 3: Latino Population by Nativity, 2008-2012

Source: OLLAS Calculations based on ACS 2008-2012

2.b. The presence of Latinos in Nebraska dates back to early 1900s. After 1930, most of the Latino population have been U.S. born.

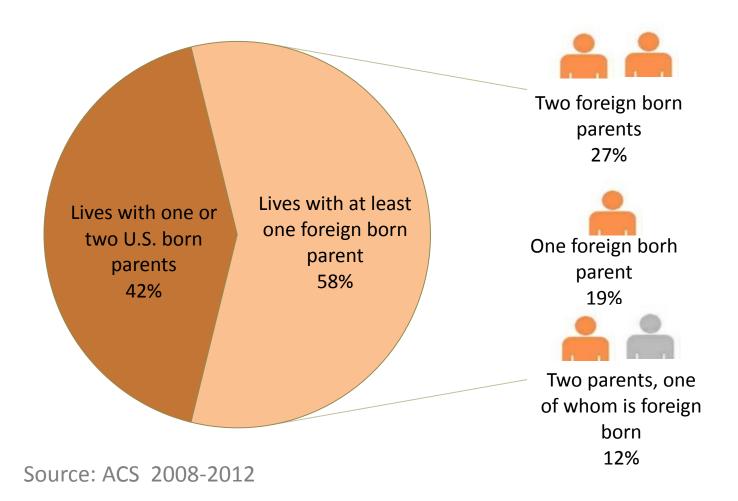

Figure 4: Evolution of Latino Population by Nativity, 1870-2012

Source: IPUMS-ACS 1870-2012

2.c. Yet, a significant proportion of U.S.-born Latino children depend on immigrant parents

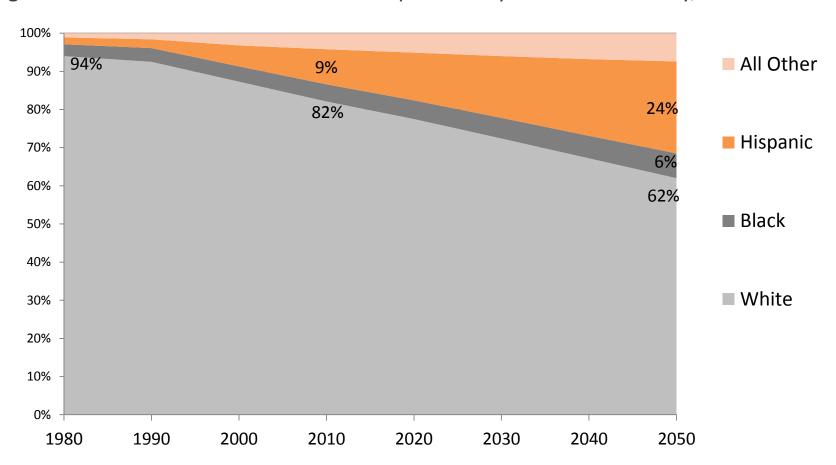

Figure 5: U.S Latino Children under 17 years-old by Nativity of Parents, 2008-2012

Latinos will increasingly shape the future of Nebraska.

3.a. In the coming years, Latinos will make a greater proportion of Nebraska population

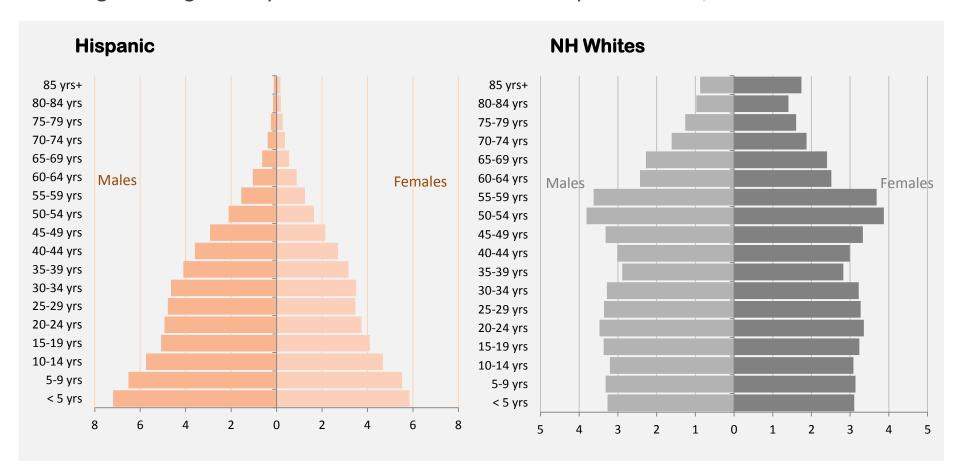

Figure 6: Percent of the Nebraska Total Population by Race and Ethnicity, 1980-2050

Source: UNO, Center for Public Affairs Research, June 2013

3.b. The young age structure of Latinos will serve as a future source of growth

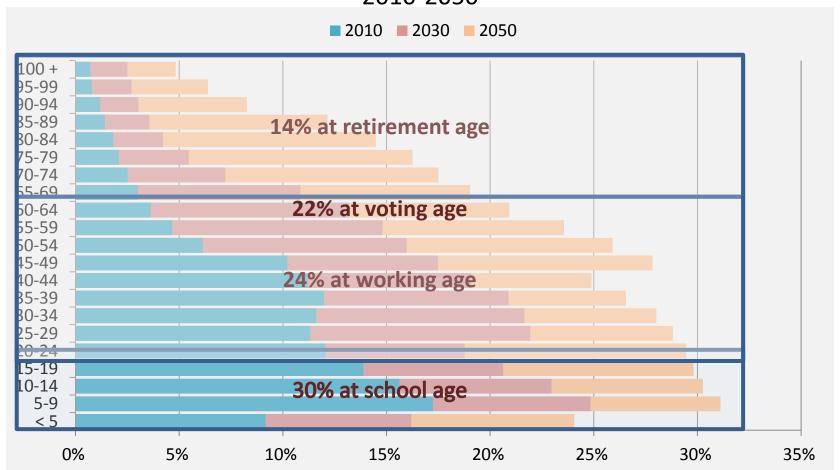

Figure 7: Age-Sex Pyramids for Latinos and Non-Hispanic Whites, Nebraska 2012

Source: U.S. Census Bureau, 2008-2012 American Community Survey

3.c. Latino growth will become more visible from the youngest to the eldest age-groups.

Figure 8: Percentage of Latinos in Nebraska Population Age Distribution 2010-2050

Source: 2010 US Census, CPAR Projections, June 2013

Can you think what would be the upcoming policy challenges?