UNO Libraries Digital Newsletter | January 2022

A Message from the Dean...

Happy New Year from your UNO Libraries! As we gear up for the Spring 2022 Semester, our library team is ready to welcome you! The Dr. C.C. and Mabel L. Criss Library's resources, spaces, and services are open and ready for the Maverick family. The Osborne Family Art Gallery begins the new year with Bruce Richardson's photographs of Afghanistan during the Soviet occupation from 1986-1991. The UNO Libraries' interest in Open Access publishing continues with opportunities to publish in Cambridge University Press journals, PLoS Biology, and PLoS Medicine. This semester we also welcome our new library colleagues, Maureen Kalkowski-Farrand, Reference Associate, and Cindy Mumford, Interlibrary Loan Coordinator. The KANEKO-UNO Library will also be open this semester. The creativity library space in downtown Omaha's Old Market area has a collection of art and creativity titles and has space for study and small meetings. As the weather warms up, don't forget to check out Criss Library's garden area on the northside of the lower level of the library. Last but not least, Criss Library will be conducting a pilot project extending our hours of operation on Saturday evenings to 7pm beginning January 29th. Again, welcome to 2022 and to your library!

-Dave Richards, Dean of Library Services

Upcoming Changes to Library Collections, Services, and Resources

To lower expenses, we are reducing the number of books purchased, and canceling those journals and databases which have a low overall usage or a high cost per use ratio. The librarians and staff of the UNO Libraries make decisions about cuts and cancellations based on a variety of factors. These include cost per use analysis (CPU), pricing models, licensing terms, inflation rates, faculty, student, and staff input, overlapping coverage from other sources, accreditation requirements, and availability of content through other means.

Open Access Publishing Agreements at UNO Libraries

The UNO Libraries support open access (OA) publishing at UNO through participation in the following agreements with scholarly publishers, which enable UNO authors to publish their articles OA in selected journals at no cost to themselves. These publishers include Cambridge University Press, and PLoS Biology and PLoS Medicine.
