DEAN'S REMARKS

Two long-term projects of importance for CPACS are described in this issue of the Happenings. The CPACS advisory committee, chaired by Ineke Marshall, Criminal Justice, is mobilizing plans for our participation in UNO's Diamond Jubilee celebration for fall, 1983. The Diamond Jubilee will give us the opportunity to focus on past accomplishments and to examine future directions and contributions to our communities.

The CPACS honors colloquium, chaired by Peter Suzuki, Public Administration/Urban Studies, is finalizing plans for our fall, 1983 course, cross-national perspectives in public affairs and services. The thoughtful work of the committee may result in CPACS developing more cross-national activities for our college.

Your assistance is needed for both of these projects. Please contact the committee chairs for additional information and to share your ideas.

John E. Kerrigan

Advisory Committee begins new year

The CPACS advisory committee was established in September, 1981 to advise the dean on matters relating to faculty, staff, and student concerns not within the domain of the curriculum or personnel committees. Membership is elected from staff, faculty, and students.

The members of the committee for the 1982-83 academic year are Floyd Waterman, CAUR; Chairperson Ineke Marshall, Criminal Justice; Shirley Waskel, Gerontology; Mike Carroll, Goodrich; Christine Howells Reed, Public Administration; Beverly Hartung, Social Work; Carole Davis, B-line representative; Cathy Young-Ratliff, C-line representative; and Tim Himberger, student representative.

Ineke Marshall states that the major project for the committee will be planning for CPACS involvement in the university's Diamond Jubilee. Other activities will include the continued work of the staff and student subcommittees on issues of importance to members of CPACS. The staff subcommittee will proceed with the formulation of policy recommendations on staff development and improvement. The student subcommittee plans to study issues of student involvement and concerns.

CPACS personnel wishing to bring issues of concern to the committee should contact the appropriate representative.

HONORS COLLOQUIUM PLANNED FOR 1983

In September Dean John Kerrigan appointed an ad hoc committee to plan an honors colloquium to be sponsored by CPACS in the fall, 1983.

The colloquium, open to all honors program students, will be an interdisciplinary effort titled "cross-national perspectives in public affairs and services." The course will deal with specific public affairs issues in foreign countries. A few of the projected topics are international migrations; social welfare systems in India and Sweden; gerontology in China, Japan, and Africa; public administration in Sri Lanka; and criminal justice in Britain, Holland, and Mexico. CPACS faculty will be recruited to teach the course.

Members of the committee are Peter Suzuki, Public Administration/Urban Studies; David DiMartino, CAUR; Eric Green, Goodrich; Ezra Kohn, Social Work; Ineke Marshall, Criminal Justice; and Leo Missinne, Gerontology.

IMPORTANT

Please help us to gather information about CPACS events and activities for this newsletter. Send information, articles, announcements, and suggestions to JoAnne Lofton, dean's office, Annex 24, ext. 2276 by the 12th of each month for publication in the Happenings.
CPACS begins preparation for UNO’s Diamond Jubilee

Wakefield named great teacher

Dr. Bill Wakefield, Criminal Justice, was awarded one of five University of Nebraska at Omaha Great Teacher Awards at the August commencement ceremonies.

This award is presented annually to full-time faculty in recognition of outstanding professional achievement in the teaching profession. Established in 1970, it is awarded to faculty who have the ability to inspire in students the desire to learn, the ability to present subject matter in an interesting and effective manner, and who have a firm belief in the importance and dignity of teaching as a profession.

Bill Wakefield was nominated by his students and supported by the Criminal Justice faculty and CPACS administration. Bill states that the most impressive aspect of receiving this honor was that it was initiated by his students. Student satisfaction is an important element in the education process, he feels.

Prior to joining the Criminal Justice faculty in 1974, Dr. Wakefield taught sociology at Dana College in Blair, Nebraska. Service to students and his profession is evidenced by his involvement in many student and professional organizations. He is the faculty advisor to the CPACS Criminal Justice Student Organization and to the Alpha Phi Sigma National Criminal Justice Honor Society. He is also president of the Midwest Criminal Justice Association, an organization of criminal justice educators in 13 states and provinces. In his spare time, he serves the Omaha community as president of the board of directors for the Nebraska chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

One of the "strongest" elements of the MPA program of Public Administration is the extensive opportunity provided for students to gain "real world" job experience while still enrolled in classes. Through internships and research assistantships, graduate students have the opportunity to test their skills in mid-level managerial roles in actual public service.

"The benefits of this experience are obvious," says David Hinton, department chair. "In fact, the students, the planning body for the College of Public Affairs and Community Service's involvement in the Diamond Jubilee celebration. Chairperson of this committee, Ineke Marshall, states that all units within CPACS will be invited to participate in the activities currently in the planning stages.

CPACS STUDENTS GRADUATED WITH HONORS

Four College of Public Affairs and Community Service students were graduated with honors at the winter commencement ceremonies on December 18. Cathy Mumford earned the Bachelor of Science degree in Criminal Justice, summa cum laude. Patricia Day, Marilee Higginbotham, and Jo Ann Leseberg were graduated magna cum laude with the Bachelor of Science in Social Work degrees.

Here's who's new in the CPACS...

BURTON J. (B. J.) REED

B. J. Reed handles major changes in his life with ease. He acquired a new job and a new wife within a 30-day period this past spring. Chris and B. J. were married in April and spent their honeymoon in Omaha being interviewed for their present faculty positions with Public Administration.

Born in Fort Hays, Kansas, B. J. earned the bachelor's and master's degree at Fort Hays Kansas State University in 1971 and 1972, specializing in public administration and urban policy. His doctorate was received from the University of Missouri-Columbia in 1977 where he researched the politics of urban planning.

B. J. says that "serendipity" has guided his professional career. In high school his interest was in teaching government and public policy. This interest was further developed in college. His conversion to bureaucrat/practitioner came during an administrative internship in the city manager's office in Mexico, Missouri. This experience later lead to his employment as the director of community development for the city of Mexico. During this period, he was also a lecturer in public administration and political science for the Institute of Public Administration, University of Missouri-Columbia.

A chance meeting at a conference resulted in his being offered employment two years later at HUD to assist in developing the capacity of that agency to do technical assistance for small cities. This six-month position led to his being employed by the National League of Cities for four years.

During this experience in D. C., B. J. met Chris. They collaborated on several projects and share common interests in politics, community development, and government.

At UNO, B. J. will be teaching courses in budgeting, municipal administration, financial administration, introduction to public administration, and urban studies. The Reeds were attracted to CPACS because public administration seemed to have the best combination of elements in which they were interested. A strong commitment to teaching, research, community service, and technical assistance combined with a progressive atmosphere was just what they wanted.

ERIC GREEN

Even though Eric Green excelled in football and track in high school and was offered athletic scholarships to Michigan State and Purdue, he was more concerned with academic achievements. Thus, when offered a full academic scholarship to Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa he accepted it.

While at Coe, he broke a family tradition of majoring in chemistry and chose history instead. Completing his undergraduate degree in 1967, he worked for two years in the Omaha public school system. In 1969, he entered graduate school at the University of Colorado, receiving a master's in 1971 and a doctorate in 1981 in history with an emphasis in urban and Afro-American affairs.

From 1973 to 1979, Eric taught in the history and pan-African studies departments at the University of Louisville. He served as acting director of black studies and assistant professor of history at the University of Mississippi during the 1981-82 academic year.

Although hired by the Goodrich Scholarship Program, Eric is teaching urban studies and the Goodrich courses, introduction to urban studies and autobiographical consciousness: fact and fantasy this semester. His interest in helping students and in public and urban affairs assisted in his making the decision to accept this position in CPACS.

Eric and his wife, Marie, were both born and raised in Louisville, Kentucky. The Greens have two children, Amy, 14, and Eric, 11.

An avid golfer at one time, Eric says that with his interests in writing, grantsmanship, and research, he has no free time for hobbies. His current project is completing a book on the subject of black cabinet members in the Roosevelt administration. He would be very pleased to have his manuscript made into a docudrama for television.

For the first time since he left Omaha in 1969, Eric is bowling again in a league.

PAT DELANCEY

Pat DeLancey assumed her position as the executive secretary for the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences in late May. This position is the result of the contract that CAUR has with the academy to house their national secretariat.

She describes her duties as including developing new membership coordination of the academy's annual national meeting, public relations, and carrying out other duties to further the goals of the organization. Pat states that she finds the work very interesting and most challenging.

Pat originally hails from Fullerton, Nebraska and has lived in Omaha since 1975.

She earned the B.S. in criminal justice from UNO and is planning to complete work on her thesis for the master’s during 1983.

In addition to attending school at UNO, Pat was employed as a staff secretary in the College of Business Administration from February, 1979 to May, 1982.

Pat is single and her leisure time activities include walking, reading, and playing softball in the summer.

Chris was graduated from Connecticut College in 1972, received her master’s in 1974, and is planning to complete her doctorate from Brown University in political science and government in June, 1983.

Upon completion of her doctoral work, she wants to become more involved in the community service aspects of her job, in her church, and in tutoring non-reading adults in the Omaha chapter of the Literacy Council of Nebraska.

Having been born and having lived most of her life in the Boston area, she really enjoys water sports. In Nebraska, she hopes to continue her interest in sports and admits to having become infected with the “Big Red Fever” by B. J.

CHRISTINE HOWELLS REED

Prominently displayed on a bookshelf in Chris Reed’s office is a small stuffed doll symbolizing supply-side economics. This doll represents Mrs. Reed’s long-time interest in government and politics. In 1968, she took a year off from her college studies to travel the primary circuit with Senator Eugene McCarthy during his quest for the presidency.

Chris and her husband, B. J., joined the Public Administration faculty in August. She is team teaching two courses this semester and devoting all spare time to completing her dissertation on the Gautreaux Fair Housing court case in the city of Chicago. She relates that she is thoroughly enjoying teaching a sophomore social science course with other Goodrich faculty and an off-campus course in municipal administration with B. J. in Kearney.

Her aspirations are to incorporate her eight years of practical work experience in government into her courses. The most recent government jobs she held were in Washington, D.C. with HUD and the National Community Development Association. Chris specialized in housing and community development during her years in the nation’s capitol.

Marcia Beer is not new to UNO; beginning in 1979 she was employed in the Intensive Language Program. She began work as the admission secretary for Social Work in August, 1982.

Marcia was born in Council Bluffs and grew up as the oldest of six children on a farm in Griswold, Iowa.

She earned a bachelor’s degree in elementary education from Northwest Missouri State College in 1972.

Prior to being employed at UNO, Marcia worked as a teacher aide in the Council Bluffs Public School System and at Meyer Children’s Rehabilitation Institute in the business office and the learning disabilities department.

Marcia and her husband, Steve, have a five year old daughter, Jackie, and are expecting another child soon.

Marcia also serves as secretary to the UNO Campus Educational Office Personnel Association (EOPA).

She enjoys needle work and sewing to relax.

JEFF LUKE

After only a short time in the Midwest, Jeff Luke and his family are thoroughly enjoying the experience. They like the people and have found them to be helpful, kindly, and very friendly. Jeff is a new faculty member of Public Administration/Urban Studies.

Jeff was born in Arizona and raised in California, received the B.S. in urban studies in 1972, the MPA with a concentration in local government administration in 1974, and in 1982 completed his doctorate in applied behavioral science and local government administration, all from the University of Southern California.

His background includes experience in city management with the city of Scottsdale Arizona, administrative analysis with the Monterey, California county government, and management training as a training consultant in public management and supervision for middle level supervisors in local governments. For a short period, he worked as an intern in the office of newly elected mayor of Los Angeles, Tom Bradley. He soon found that the 16-hour work day severely conflicted with his studies, and he was forced to make a painful choice.

He states that he took a year off from his doctoral studies to have a family. Translation: he interrupted his studies to marry his high school sweetheart, Peggy. Peggy is an artist and poet. The Lukes have three children, Tori, 4 months, Mona Crystal, 16 months, and Kavi, 6 years old.

This semester at UNO Jeff is teaching introduction to public administration and introduction to urban studies. In the spring semester, he will teach graduate theory courses in public organizations.

His career has been responsible for Jeff's having lived in some of the most beautiful resort areas in the world. He has worked near the seashore in Caliifornia, lived in the mountains of Caliifornia, and worked in the desert resort cities of Scottsdale and Lake Havasu, Arizona. For four months in 1977, he studied at the Carl G. Junge Institute of Analytical Psychology in Zurich, Switzerland near the Swiss Alps. Now he and his family have the opportunity to explore the Midwest. On weekends, the family enjoys weekend excursions in Iowa and Nebraska to become acquainted with the history of this area.

MICHELLE SCHMITZ

Michelle Schmitz was hired in June as a word processing specialist by the Center for Applied Urban Research.
A 1982 graduate of UNO, Michelle received the bachelor's in business administration with a concentration in decision sciences.

Michelle is a native of Omaha. She and Jean Patterson were classmates in the first through third grades at Holy Angels Elementary School.

She is planning to take courses in computer science and would eventually like to work with computers.

Michelle lists photography, backgammon, and snorkeling as her special interests. She had a chance to pursue the latter recently on a trip to Hawaii as well as soak up some sun and take in the football game.

CPACS SPEEDERS SAVOR SPECIAL SNEAKER AWARD

Three CPACS faculty/staff participated in the recent corporate run competition as members of the UNO team. The college's "university class runners" are Cathy Young-Ratliff, Goodrich; Bill
Wakefield, Criminal Justice, and Vince
Webb, CAUR and Criminal Justice.

Cathy's time was 54:20.8 in the women's division. In the men's division, Vince posted a time of 42:16.5 and Bill's was 48:39.9. The UNO competition team placed eleventh overall out of 51 teams.

The Dean's Special Sneaker Award will be presented to each of these three runners at the annual CPACS picnic.
Staff Activity

CAROLE DAVIS
FLOYD WATERMAN

The Department of Public Welfare awarded a grant to CAUR to provide training for foster parents throughout the state. Carole Davis is project director, and Floyd Waterman is coordinator of training.

PAT DELANCEY

The Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences has contracted with CAUR for housing its national secretariat. Pat DeLancey is the executive secretary for this organization, and the CAUR staff provides support services.

MURRAY FROST

A study of potential revenue sources for the city of Omaha is being conducted by Murray Frost.

DON NORRIS

Through a grant of $72,212 from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation, CAUR is providing training and technical assistance for a two-year period for small and rural governmental units in the acquisition and use of microcomputers. Don Norris is the project director.

Dr. Norris presented a paper, "Innovative Methods of Refuse Collection," at the 4th National Waste Management Conference in Lake Louise, Alberta, Canada in October.

A fact sheet on solid waste collection was developed by Don Norris for the American Public Works Association in September.

The principal investigator of an analysis of personnel management for the city of Omaha is Don Norris. Vince Webb, B. J. Reed, and Tom Jamieson will also work on this project.

WILDA STEPHENSON

Wilda Stephenson has received the outstanding community service award from the Urban League Guild.

Mrs. Stephenson made a presentation to the 1982 Annual Conference of the Council for Exceptional Children in October. Her topic was, "The Educable Mentally Handicapped/Learning Disabled Student’s Reaction to Social Pressures." In November she addressed the Samaritan group from Clair Methodist Church on "Successful Aging" and also that month talked to a Unitarian Church group on "Civil Rights in Omaha: Progress from the Sixties to the Seventies."

JACK RUFF
R. K. PIPER

Jack Ruff and R. K. Piper are working on a project for Neighborhood Housing Services to conduct a physical property inventory and attitude survey in the area bounded by Lake, Ames, 30th Street, and Fontenelle Boulevard.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE

VINCE WEBB

Vince Webb presented a paper at the annual meeting of the Midwest Association of Criminal Justice Educators titled "The Graying of the Professoriate Reconsidered: The Impact of Demographics on Criminal Justice Education." Dr. Webb also completed his term as president of this organization.

BILL WAKEFIELD

Bill Wakefield has assumed the presidency of the Midwest Association of Criminal Justice Educators for the 1982-83 year.

GERONTOLOGY PROGRAM

"CHUCK" POWELL

The Nebraska Commission on Aging has awarded Chuck Powell funds to investigate the television viewing habits of the elderly in Nebraska.

JIM THORSON

Dr. Jim Thorson conducted in-service training for the staff of the Orchard Hills and Maplecrest Nursing Homes. The training focused on relationships and dealing with older patients and their families.

Jim Thorson is also teaching a course on gerontology and death by closed-circuit television this semester. The telecast originates live from the Omaha Veterans Administration Hospital, and is telecast to four sites in the state. This course serves approximately 70 students located at the University of Nebraska Medical Center, St. Joseph's Hospital, and the Omaha, Lincoln, and Grand Island Veterans Administration Hospitals.

SHIRLEY WASKEL

Dr. Shirley Waskel attended the national meeting of the Adult Education Association in San Antonio, Texas. She delivered two papers, "Perceptions of Older Adults' Problem Solving Capabilities" and "The Role of Service Units in Relation to Academic Research."

GOODRICH PROGRAM

DIANE GILLESPIE

Diane Gillespie received the doctorate in psychological and cultural studies in education from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln in July, 1982.

Dr. Gillespie was recently a panel discussant on "What NU?" on Channel 12. A panel of teachers and James Raglin, UN systems office, discussed how students and teaching techniques have changed over the past five to ten years.

PHIL SECRET

Dr. Secret presented a paper, "The Impact of Race on Attitudes Toward Issues of Life: Death Penalty and Legal Abortion," at the 78th Annual Meeting of the American Political Science Association Conference in Denver, Colorado.
PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION/URBAN STUDIES

DAVID HINTON
JOHN E. KERRIGAN

David Hinton and John Kerrigan completed a paper for the Region VII ASPA Conference in St. Louis on "Government and Small Business." They are also scheduled to participate in a panel at the New York ASPA conference.

B. J. REED

Dr. Reed chaired a panel at the annual meeting of the Southern Political Science Association in Atlanta. The panel dealt with the topic, "Federal Block Grants to State Government." He also presented a paper as part of the panel.

He has had an article published on the current role of states in the small cities Community Development Block Grant program in the Journal of the Council of State Governments.

JEFF LUKE

Jeff Luke defended his dissertation, "Interdependence: The Key Environmental Factor for Public Administration in its Second Century," at the University of Southern California. His work focused on examining some core theoretical assumptions underlying public administration and included an award winning case study on economic development in southern California.

He also presented a paper, "Innovative Strategies for Local Economic Development," at the Region VII ASPA Conference in St. Louis in September. He has a paper accepted for the national ASPA conference in New York and also will be participating in a panel discussion on "The Need for a Theory of Public Administration" at that conference.

Chris Howells Reed attended the public-private partnerships meeting in Des Moines, Iowa, October 27-28, 1982.

Mrs. Reed briefed the community planning and development staff of the Omaha HUD area office on the Urban Development Action Grant Program. This briefing, which took place October 22, was designed to provide background information on the grant program as the Omaha HUD office will become more involved in its administration.

She and B. J. Reed have been working with the Urban Housing Foundation on several activities. This work included advice on the development of a HUD grant proposal, which was funded, and a joint effort to bring to Omaha and to UNO two distinguished housing experts—Cushing Dolbeare, director of the National Low Income Housing Coalition, and author Dr. Eugene Meehan, professor of political science, University of Missouri, St. Louis. While in Omaha, the two speakers will participate in a television program being developed by the Urban Housing Foundation and CAUR.

HARRY REYNOLDS

Dr. Harry Reynolds has had an editorial accepted for publication in the American Journal of Public Administration.

JOHN SWAIN

Dr. Swain completed work on a training manual on Budgeting for Nebraska Local Governments. This work is part of a Nebraska Foundation project.

He also participated in a three-member panel at a November 9 planning and zoning workshop sponsored by the Extra Metropolitan Council of Governments (EMCOG) at Oakland, Nebraska.

ED TWARDY

Ed Twardy is directing a faculty team in public administration to provide technical assistance and training regarding a performance appraisal system for Beatrice State Development Center. The system has been designed and implementation is underway.

SOCIAL WORK

SUNNY ANDREWS

Dr. Sunny Andrews recently participated in the Deans' and Directors' Conference of the Association of Social Work Education in Washington, D.C.

COMMISSION REVIEWING SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK

The Commission on Accreditation of the Council on Social Work Education is in the process of completing the program review of the School of Social Work for the reaffirmation of accreditation.

Every seven years, the school must undergo review to assure that the accrediting standards are being met.

This review is conducted in three stages: the self-study, the on-site evaluation team visit and report, and the formal program review and vote of reaffirmation by the commission which is scheduled to take place on January 17, 1983.

The School of Social Work began the process in March, 1981 with the appointment of the self-study committee. Dr. Ezra Kohn was appointed chair of this committee to review and evaluate the school internally. The report was completed in early fall, 1982 and forwarded to the council.

The Council on Social Work Education selected the members of the on-site evaluation team with input from the School of Social Work. The team members were Dr. Kenneth W. Kindelsperger, chairperson and formerly dean of the School of Social Work, University of Denver; Dr. Charlotte Dunmore, professor, School of Social Work, University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Edward McKinney, director, Undergraduate Social Work Program, Cleveland State University; Dr. Thomas Powell, professor, School of Social Work, University of Michigan; and Mr. James Miller, executive director, Family Service Association of Indianapolis. The team was on campus October 20 and 22.

The School of Social Work has received a copy of the report that will be presented to the commission in preparation for the vote of reaffirmation. After reading and responding to the report, Dr. Andrews, director of the School of Social Work, stated that the vote for reaffirmation of the school's accreditation should be favorable.

The on-site evaluation team felt that the school had many strengths, among which are:

1. "The curricula of the Bachelor of Social Work and the Master of Social Work programs appear to be highly regarded by all of the constituent members of the UNO School of Social Work community."

2. Currently there are specializations in Child Welfare and Gerontology. Both of these are enriched by (Continued on page 8) relevant resources from outside the school. The first occurs through special grants and collaborative work with state agencies, and the other occurs through model arrangements with the Gerontology Program within the College... These are exemplary programs.
3. This school has a hardworking, well-qualified faculty which is covering a wide range of responsibilities.
4. There is strong support of the students for the quality of the faculty's instruction and advising."
The report further stated that within the college a harmonious relationship exists among the components of the college and that the relationship between the dean's office and the school is favorable.
Weaknesses noted in the report were in the areas of library utilization, record system on field practicums, the relationship of the Omaha based program to the Lincoln campus program, and the need for future renovations to provide adequate office space.
The final statement in the report captures the essence of the document:
"Overall, the school has come a long way in overcoming the many problems it has had in the past. It now has an excellent faculty and a sound curriculum. It will need to establish its priorities carefully in the future in light of the obvious retrenchment of the university in which it is located."

CRIMINAL JUSTICE STUDENT WILL GO TO PUERTO RICO

Joe Wilson, a senior in Criminal Justice, has been accepted for the honors semester jointly sponsored by the National Collegiate Honors Council and the honors program of the Rio Piedras campus of the University of Puerto Rico for the 1983 spring semester in San Juan.
Joe was awarded one of 30 places determined by a national competition.
He will be participating in a challenging and timely course of academic study and engaging in a bicultural and bilingual experience in which mainland and Puerto Rican students will be paired in independent research interests and living arrangements.
