ACADEMIC REGALIA

Identification of the hood and robe as academic apparel is believed to have originated at the English universities of Oxford and Cambridge during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. The hoods are a carry-over from the times when monks, who operated these universities, wore them to protect their shaved heads in winter. The robe is an adaptation of the shoulder cape also worn by these same monks while collecting alms.

Use of the academic robe came to the United States in 1754 with the founding of what is now Columbia University. In 1895, a commission of University officials adopted a universal code of design and color for the academic garb. This code has undergone several revisions in subsequent years.

Styling of the robes varies for the bachelor's and master's degrees with the width of sleeve borders and length of the hood increasing with each advanced degree. Hoods are normally not used for bachelor's degrees today. Instead, the tassel colors are used to indicate the degree program.

UNIVERSITY HONORS PROGRAM

The University Honors Program is an all-University program which provides maximum educational opportunities for students of high ability through special multidisciplinary seminars and participation in an academic level not generally possible in usual auricular offerings.

The program is an outgrowth of the Arts and Sciences Honors program and was initiated in 1978. It is governed through the office of the Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs and administered through the Honors Coordinator. UNO colleges which implement honors programs include Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, Fine Arts and Public Affairs and Community Service.

As part of their Honors Program requirements, students undertake a research project that results in a Senior Honors Thesis. Students and their theses topics are listed before the list of undergraduate degree candidates. Students who have been designated in this booklet as Honors Program students have fulfilled the academic requirements of this program.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

SHELTON E. HENDRICKS, PH.D.

Today's commencement address, "Rights, Privileges and Responsibilities," will be delivered by Shelton E. Hendricks, Ph.D., professor of psychology at UNOmaha.

A native of New Orleans, La., Dr. Hendricks earned his bachelor of science, master of science and doctor of philosophy degrees from Tulane University. He joined the UNOmaha faculty in 1969 as an assistant professor of psychology and has contributed to the success and national reputation of the institution for the past three decades.

Dr. Hendricks teaches graduate and undergraduate courses in behavioral neuroscience and has supervised a number of master's theses and doctoral dissertations. He also teaches freshman surveys of psychology and manages a freshman psychology laboratory. His research interests include neurophysiology and endocrinology related to sexual behavior and behavioral pharmacology.

In addition to his teaching and research efforts, Dr. Hendricks has served UNOmaha in a number of administrative capacities, including as chair of the department of psychology and the Graduate Program Committee. He is a past member of the Dean's Advisory Committee for the College of Arts & Sciences, the Chancellor's Task Force on General Education, the Institutional Review Board for the Protection of Human Subjects in Research for the University of Nebraska system and the Academic Planning Council. He recently completed a term as president of the UNOmaha Faculty Senate and is a 1999 recipient of the UNOmaha Distinguished Research or Creative Activity Award.

Dr. Hendricks is a member of the Psychonomic Society, the Society for Neuroscience, the American Association of University Professors, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Midlands Neuroscience Chapter and Sigma Xi.

STUDENT COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

RUTH ANN LEACOCK

The professional and educational career of Ruth Ann Leacock has been marked by community service. She values the importance of making a difference in the lives of others, and will focus her attention on the fundamental need for a healing presence in her commencement address titled "Listening Well."

Leacock graduates today magna cum laude with a bachelor of science degree in interpersonal communication and a certificate in gerontology. A graduate of Orono High School in Long Lake, Minn., she also attended the University of Minnesota and the College of Dupage in Wheaton, Ill.

During her time at UNOmaha, Leacock received the UNOmaha Faculty Women's Scholarship Award and was voted Outstanding Major in Speech by department faculty for 1998-99. She was a nominee for the Midlands Outstanding Volunteer Award in 1997.

Leacock also has served as a volunteer for VNA Hospice, as a volunteer at Immanuel Fontenelle Nursing Home and most recently as a social services case aide at the Lutheran Home Nursing Home. From 1978 to 1986, she was a foster parent for Hennepin County Social Services in Minneapolis, providing care for neglected, abused, abandoned, mentally handicapped and mentally ill individuals.

Leacock will enter the Master's in Spirituality Program at Creighton University next summer. This fall, she will host refugees resettling in the Omaha area as part of her commitment to assist the Jesuit and Ignatian Associate communities in their work with the poor.

In her spare time she writes music, adding to a 225-page collection of original songs that chronicle her day-to-day experiences.

CHANCELLOR'S MEDAL RECIPIENT

JAMES R. SAKER, PH.D.

James R. Saker, Ph.D., uses music to educate, inspire and entertain. Nominated as a co-recipient with Robert W. Welk, both men are described as the "heart and soul" of the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNOmaha). Both men keep the interests of their students as the focus of their respective departments and college activities.

He has made outstanding contributions to UNOmaha and the surrounding community for more than two decades. Dr. Saker currently serves as a professor of music and director of bands in the College of Fine Arts. He earned his bachelor of music degree from Bowling Green State University in 1967, his master of music degree from Youngstown State University in 1975 and his Ph.D. in music education from the University of Iowa in 1982.

During his 21-year tenure at UNOmaha, the marching and concert bands have received national acclaim by performing at concerts, festivals and National Football League half-time shows in Denver, Kansas City and Minneapolis. The UNOmaha Symphonic Wind Ensemble has performed for numerous professional conferences and went on a three-week tour of eastern Europe in 1997.

An active clinician and lecturer, Dr. Saker has presented sessions at numerous state, regional and national Music Educators Association conferences and at the regional and national conventions of the College Band Directors National Association. He also has served as a guest conductor at high school, collegiate, honors and professional groups throughout the United States, Canada and Europe.

He is a past president of the Nebraska State Bandmasters Association and the Nebraska Music Educators Association. He currently serves as state chair for the College Band Directors National Association.

Dr. Saker is the recipient of the university's Great Teacher Award, a commendation from the University of Nebraska Board of Regents and the National Band Association Citation of Excellence. In 1993, he received the Donald A. Lentz Outstanding Bandmaster Award from the Nebraska State Bandmasters Association. In 1997, he was named the Isaacson Distinguished Professor of Music at UNOmaha, an endowed chair awarded to attract and retain outstanding scholars, artists and teachers.

"Jim has achieved broad recognition in his artistic specialty and has inspired students to excellence through his personal example and teaching," a nominator wrote. "He is an unsung hero who is most deserving of this recognition."

In honor of his dedication and service, UNOmaha takes pride in recognizing James Saker as an August 1999 recipient of the Chancellor's Medal.

The Chancellor's Medal at the University of Nebraska at Omaha was established to recognize the contributions of faculty and administrative staff who embody the institution's mission and values. It is bestowed only to those within the university community who have demonstrated unusual excellence.

ROBERT W. WELK, M.A.

Robert W. Welk, M.A., works long and tirelessly on behalf of the institution. Nominated as a co-recipient with James R. Saker, both men are described as the "heart and soul" of the University of Nebraska at Omaha (UNOmaha). Both men keep the interests of their students as the focus of their respective departments and college activities.

He has made outstanding contributions to UNOmaha and the surrounding community for more than three decades. Welk currently serves as associate professor and chair of dramatic arts in the College of Fine Arts. He received his bachelor of arts degree in speech and English from North Central College in 1960 and his master of arts degree in theatre from Kent State University in 1962. He also performed additional graduate work at the University of Iowa from 1963 to 1966.

Welk joined the UNOmaha faculty in 1966 and has enabled the theatre department to attain higher levels of artistic and educational achievement with each passing year. He teaches courses in scenic design, lighting and technical production, and has designed scenery and/or lighting for more than 100 major productions at UNOmaha.

In April 1999, Welk took the cast and crew of "All in the Timing," an award-winning UNOmaha production, to perform at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C. He is the recipient of the Kennedy Center Gold Medallion - awarded by the Kennedy Center/American College Theatre Festival, Region V - for service to the theatre profession at the university, in Omaha and throughout the region. He was inducted into the UNOmaha chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa in 1993 and received the Meritorious Achievement Award from the Kennedy Center/American College Theatre Festival, Region V, in 1993 and 1997 for guiding the construction of a new theatre and for scenic design, respectively.

In addition to his work at UNOmaha, Welk has lent his expertise to organizations throughout the metropolitan area, including the Jewish Community Center, the Emmy Gifford Children's Theater, the Upstairs Dinner Theater, the Center Stage Theater, Benson and Ralston high schools, the French Underground and Duchesne Academy. He also has been active with the Boy Scouts of America, serving as assistant scoutmaster and scoutmaster of Troop 42 (Dundee Presbyterian Church) for nine years and as district commissioner of the organization's Voyager District. He started the Ph.D. program in Commissioner Science for the Mid-America Boy Scouts Council, served as chair of its College of Commissioner Science and received the Award of Merit from the Voyager District.

"Bob has achieved broad recognition in his artistic specialty and has inspired students to excellence through his personal example and teaching," a nominator wrote. "He is an unsung hero who is most deserving of this recognition."

In honor of his dedication and service, UNOmaha takes pride in recognizing Robert Welk as an August 1999 recipient of the Chancellor's Medal.

The Chancellor's Medal at the University of Nebraska at Omaha was established to recognize the contributions of faculty and administrative staff who embody the institution's mission and values. It is bestowed only to those within the university community who have demonstrated unusual excellence.

ORDER OF THE TOWER RECIPIENT

C.R. "BOB" BELL

His name is synonymous with local economic development, and his commitment to making Omaha a better place to live and work is well known throughout the metropolitan area.

C.R. "Bob" Bell, the August 1999 Order of the Tower recipient, is president of the Greater Omaha Chamber of Commerce. He joined the chamber in 1989 after retiring from the U.S. Navy as a vice admiral with 35 years of active duty. He graduated with distinction from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., in 1953.

Under Bell's leadership, the chamber has placed a major emphasis on the development of Omaha as a national model for business involvement in education, establishing Omaha 2000 to reach America 2000 national education goals. The Applied Information Management Institute - a consortium of business, education and government entities - was established to support Omaha's mass information technology industry. In addition, the Omaha Job Clearinghouse was established to provide career opportunities and mentoring to "at risk" high school youth. He also played an important role in the development of The Peter Kiewit Institute of Information Science, Technology and Engineering on UNOmaha's South Campus.

In 1989, Bell helped organize Project Safe, a coalition of businesses and community groups that help fight drug use and gang violence. He was instrumental in starting the "Buy The Big O" campaign, the Omaha Business Hall of Fame and the Omaha Business Showcase.

Bell is the recipient of numerous awards, including the Omaha Club's 1991 Man of the Year and the General George Crook Award from the West Point Society of Omaha in 1993.

For all his service and contributions to the university, it is with great pleasure that C.R. "Bob" Bell is awarded the Order of the Tower.

First presented in 1964, the Order of the Tower is the University of Nebraska at Omaha's highest non-academic award. Since that time, more than 70 individuals have received this honor, which symbolizes an ongoing commitment to the growth and development of the university.

The Order of the Tower is bestowed upon community leaders whose service and/or financial support has made it possible for the university to address the academic, cultural and economic needs of the people of Omaha and the citizens of Nebraska. Recipients of the award embody virtues and attributes valued highly by the university and are recognized as an example to others.

HONORARY DEGREE - DOCTOR OF SCIENCE

DENHAM HARMAN, M.D., PH.D.

He's known as the "father of the free radical theory of aging," and has promoted the dignity and value of the elderly throughout his professional career.

Denham Harman, M.D., Ph.D., is a professor emeritus in the College of Medicine at the University of Nebraska Medical Center (UNMC). A native of San Francisco, he received his bachelor of science degree and Ph.D. in chemistry from the University of California at Berkeley. He then pursued medical school, earning his M.D. from Stanford University in 1954. He joined the UNMC faculty in 1958.

The free radical theory of aging went from obscurity in 1956 to pre-eminence in the 1980s and 1990s. Like many other visionaries, Dr. Harman's early research was largely ignored, but he persisted. "His contributions to the scientific understanding of the aging process and to basic life processes in general are immense," a nominator wrote. "The free radical theory now appears to be one of the fundamental explanations of the aging process." Further studies at UNMC established the role of free radical reactions in cancer and heart disease. These reactions are now implicated in more than 40 other debilitating diseases.

Dr. Harman was an advocate for the specialized treatment of the elderly long before geriatric medicine became popular. In 1973, he was appointed head of the gerontology and geriatric section in internal medicine at UNMC, becoming the first person to hold this designation at an American medical college. In conjunction with UNOmaha's statewide gerontology mission, he has frequently collaborated with students and faculty at UNOmaha.

He was one of the founders of the American Aging Association in 1970, served as editor of Age - the journal of the American Aging Association - from 1978 to 1991, was a delegate to the White House Conference on Aging in 1971 and served as chair of its Options for Long-Term Care Committee in 1981. The author of 84 published research articles and six books, Dr. Harman received the Outstanding Scientist of the Year award from Sigma Xi Nebraska in 1979 and the American Aging Association's Research Award in 1982. He was named the Kaiser Lecturer at the University of Hawaii School of Medicine in 1992, received the A. Ross McIntyre Award from the UNMC College of Medicine in 1994 and was the recipient of the Irving S. Wright Award from the American Federation for Aging Research and the Distinguished Honorary Alumnus Award from the UNMC College of Medicine in 1997. Also that year, he received the Herbert DeBries Research Award from the Council on Aging and Adult Development of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. He also holds 35 U.S. patents. Dr. Harman is still active professionally, including serving as president of the International Association for Biomedical Gerontology.

It is with great pleasure that Dr. Denham Harman is awarded the honorary Doctor of Science degree from UNOmaha - a visionary scientist whose body of work has had a direct impact on the well-being of elderly throughout Nebraska and the world.

ALUMNUS ACHIEVEMENT AWARD RECIPIENT

KATHLEEN C. DODGE

A 1967 UNOmaha alumna, Dodge is president of National Equity, Inc., a full-service relocation management company.

Dodge received a master's degree in psychology from UNO. A Massachusetts native, she also has a bachelor's degree from Trinity University in San Antonio and attended Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass. Early in her career she practiced as a psychologist for Millard Public Schools and provided psychological consulting services for school systems in a four-county area in eastern Nebraska.

In 1986 she joined the private sector, becoming president and chief operating officer of National Equity. At the time, it employed just four people and had only a few corporate clients. Today, 13 years later, National Equity has more than 60 corporate clients and last year provided relocation services to more than 3,000 people domestically and internationally.

Her success and the company's growth has made Dodge a popular public speaker within the industry. She has delivered speeches on relocation issues to numerous organizations, including the Great Lakes Relocation Council, the International Relocation Symposium and others. She has been a member of the Employee Relocation Council (ERC) since she joined National Equity in 1986. She was awarded the ERC's meritorious service award in 1999.

Dodge has been just as active outside the industry, volunteering her time, money and efforts to various organizations in the community. That includes the Nebraska Foodbank Network, the Omaha Public Library Foundation, United Way of the Midlands, Uta Halee Girls Village, the Great Plains Girl Scout Council, the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, Voices for Children and the Child Saving Institute of Omaha. She also has given back to her alma mater, serving on the UNO Alumni Association board of directors and chairing the UNO Women's Walk committee for two years.
