Andrew Carnegie Medal for excellence in children’s video:
Katja Torneman, producer of “Anna, Emma and the Condors,” is the Carnegie Medal winner.

Laura Ingalls Wilder Award honors an author or illustrator whose books, published in the United States, have made, over a period of years, a substantial and lasting contribution to literature for children. The 2013 winner is Katherine Paterson. Paterson was born in China in 1932 to missionary parents and grew up in the American South, moving eighteen times before she was 18. After graduating from King College in Bristol, Tennessee, she herself became a missionary in Japan. She returned to the U.S. to attend the Union Theological Seminary in New York, where she met and married John Paterson, a Presbyterian minister. Her first book, “The Sign of the Chrysanthemum,” was published in 1973. Katherine Paterson currently lives in Barre, Vermont.

Coretta Scott King-Virginia Hamilton Award for Lifetime Achievement: Demetria Tucker is the 2013 recipient. Tucker has served as youth services coordinator within the Roanoke (Va.) Public Library System and library media specialist at the Forest Park Elementary School, where she was selected 2007 Teacher of the Year. As family and youth services librarian for the Pearl Bailey Library, a branch of the Newport News (Va.) Public Library System, Tucker now coordinates a youth leadership program, a teen urban literature club and many other programs that support the youth of her community.

Margaret A. Edwards Award for lifetime achievement in writing for young adults: Tamora Pierce is the 2013 Edwards Award winner. Pierce was born in rural Western Pennsylvania in 1954. She knew from a young age she liked stories and writing, and in 1983, she published her first book in the series, Song of the Lioness. She continues to write and even record her own audiobooks. She currently lives with her husband (spouse-creature) and a myriad of animals in Syracuse, New York.

May Hill Arbuthnot Honor Lecture Award recognizing an author, critic, librarian, historian or teacher of children’s literature, who then presents a lecture at a winning host site. Andrea Davis Pinkney will deliver the 2014 May Hill Arbuthnot Honor Lecture. Andrea Davis Pinkney is a New York Times best-selling writer of more than 20 books for children and young adults including picture books, novels and nonfiction. During the course of her career, Pinkney has launched many high-profile publishing and entertainment entities, including Hyperion Books for Children/Disney Publishing’s Jump at the Sun imprint, the first African American children’s book imprint at a major publishing company.

I'm not comfortable being preachy, but more people need to start spending as much time in the library as they do on the basketball court.

Everything you need for better future and success has already been written. And guess what? All you have to do is go to the library.

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT: Annette Parde

What is your education/library/experience background?
I graduated with a BA in history from UNL and then worked as a museum educator in Nebraska, Kentucky, and Ohio. When I returned to Lincoln, I found a job with the Historical Studies and National Day: Nebraska programs at Nebraska Wesleyan University. In the next few weeks, I will be transitioning to a circulation assistant position in Wesleyan’s library.

What is on your reading list? What are your favorites? Your recommended? Your want to read list?
I have piles of books that I have yet to read waiting for me to graduate in May! I am a few books into the Aubrey/Maturin series (Master and Commander). The first few were great, and I’m excited to continue with the next 17! In the past few years, Rex Stout’s Nero Wolfe series has captivated my interest. (A&E made a great TV series from the books too.) Throw in a little Sir Arthur Conan Doyle’s Sherlock Holmes, and I’ve got a mystery-filled night.

Most recently I finished Julie & Julia. I had to read it after watching the movie. Elizabeth Gilbert’s Eat, Pray, Love and Committed are favorites. They’re honest, witty, and poignant. Another perennial favorite is Charles Dickens’ A Christmas Carol.

Last semester, I read Master Switch by Tim Wu for class. I highly recommend it. It’s a fairly quick read about emerging information technologies throughout history. It shows the interplay between corporations and government and how that affected the technologies and the public.

I’m looking forward to reading Tolkien’s Lord of the Rings trilogy as I have not read them yet. (Sad, I know.)

What professional journal or article have you read and would recommend? Why?
Library Journal is my overall favorite. It is accessible to any librarian, no matter where they work. The Movers and Shakers special feature steered my attention toward library school and a potential career in libraries.

Recently, I have been reading the Library as Incubator Project (http://www.libraryasincubatorproject.org/). It’s not a professional journal, but it is a website devoted to fostering creativity in libraries.

What do you think will be your legacy in this profession?
It is my desire to publicize those projects that already exist, and eventually, I would like to pull materials together and help build one.

What is your favorite quote?
“Tis’ better to live your own life imperfectly than to imitate someone else’s perfectly.”
- Elizabeth Gilbert, Eat, Pray, Love

What deep dark secret would you like to share?
I have had some amazing opportunities in the Library Science program, and I could not have foreseen many of them. Perhaps the most surprising one was that I found a boyfriend.

Name one of your personal or professional qualities that will make you a leader in 21st century library and information centers?
I like using technology to help people access and understand information. It will be exciting to see how the field will continue to change as new technologies are employed.

What advice do you have for other students who are currently enrolled in Library Science studies?
Ask your classmates about classes they’ve taken. Find out which ones peak your interest the most. You only have so much time before you graduate; use it wisely.

What do you see as key future trends and challenges for Library Information Specialists?
I’m curious to see what will happen with e-books. I hope that we look back in a few years and see the current pricing structure and limitations as an antiquated system. Librarians will continue to provide reference in nontraditional ways - from imbedded librarian-ship to roving reference. As more resources become available online, information literacy and smart searching will be paramount for library instruction.

What do you think will be your legacy in this profession?
I want to be involved in digital libraries or humanities projects. I want to publicize those projects that already exist, and eventually, I would like to pull materials together and help build one.

What is your education/library/experience background?

Annette Parde at the Nebraska Library Commission’s Tech Rodeo.

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

It’s important for all of our students to keep up with the current library job postings. You never know when your “perfect” job might come along. We regularly send out an email with the current postings. Please read these! Even if you’re not looking for a job, you may see something that you want to pass on to a classmate or colleague. In addition to reading these emails, take the initiative to check the website periodically. We only send out Nebraska postings, but you can view regional postings by accessing the website.

Visit: http://nlc1.nlc.state.ne.us/NowHiring/JobsAndCareers.asp and check out who is looking to hire in Nebraska and in other states as well. Directions: Once you access this link, select “view by location”, pick your state and then hit “GO”. This site provides access to postings in Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming.
