BIG-TWO TALKS IN WASHINGTON

(Credit from page 1) For the first time, two of the world's leading nations are to make a successful approach to a nuclear arms agreement that has been in the making for months. The talks will be held in Washington, D.C., and are expected to be the first step towards a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The President and the Prime Minister of the United States, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Macmillan, will meet in the White House tomorrow to discuss the future of the Middle East and the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty. The talks are expected to be held in the presence of the Secretary of State, Mr. Rusk, and will be the first time that the two leaders have met face-to-face.

The talks are significant because they mark a turning point in the Cold War, and if successful, could lead to a major breakthrough in the search for disarmament.

IN SOVIET BIG-TWO

Yesterday, Mr. Khrushchev, the Prime Minister of the Soviet Union, arrived in Washington for a three-day visit. This is his first official visit to the United States, and he is expected to meet with President Johnson and other top officials.

Mr. Khrushchev is expected to discuss a range of issues, including the arms race, the Middle East, and the possibility of a test ban treaty. The talks are likely to be tough, but there is hope that a breakthrough can be achieved.

The talks are being held at a crucial time, as the world faces the threat of nuclear war. The two leaders are expected to discuss the possibility of a test ban treaty, which could help to reduce the risk of nuclear conflict.

It is clear that both leaders are committed to reaching an agreement, and the talks are expected to be a major step towards a lasting peace.

In conclusion, the talks in Washington are a significant event, and the world will be watching to see if a breakthrough can be achieved.
