Leftist Advances In Laos

U.S.A. PLANS MORE FORCEFUL ACTION

KABUL, May 12—President Ayub Khan of Pakistan has offered to supply his country's military forces in Pakistan to the Lao Government and has made it clear that he favors an American economic package as an alternative to the Lao Government's request for economic assistance from China. In an interview with reporters yesterday, the President said: 'The Lao Government's request for economic assistance from China is being considered by the Lao Government's military authorities, and the President of the Lao Government has also been informed of our offer to supply our forces to the Lao Government. The President of the Lao Government has also been informed of the American economic package as an alternative to the Lao Government's request for economic assistance from China.' The President added that he would support the request for economic assistance from China if the Lao Government is not satisfied with the American package.

KABUL SPORTS

ROUND-UP

The following are the results of the matches played in the National League:

BONN DENIES RIIFT WITH WASHINGTON

The German Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, has denied that there is a rift between Bonn and Washington, and has expressed confidence that talks on the future of Germany will continue. Adenauer said: 'There is no rift between Bonn and Washington. The two countries have always had good relations, and this will continue.'

The President of the Lao Government has also been informed of our offer to supply our forces to the Lao Government. The President of the Lao Government has also been informed of the American economic package as an alternative to the Lao Government's request for economic assistance from China.
KABUL TIMES

MAY 12, 1952

THE Boiling Pot of Algeria Needs to Be Cooled

AT A GLANCE

KABUL TIMES

MAY 12, 1952

RADIO KABUL

PROGRAMME

EXTERNAL SERVICES

SUNDAY

ANRAN AIRAFI AIRLINE

ARABIA

ARRIVAL

KAMAL

14:20 A.M.

BAGDAD

14:15 A.M.

PERAX

14:20 A.M.

DEPARTURE

KAMAL

14:20 A.M.

BAGDAD

14:15 A.M.

PERAX

14:20 A.M.

THE Boiling Pot of Algeria Needs to Be Cooled

By MEMOR

The simmering of events in the Sahara desert, the simmering of the Arabian Peninsula, and the simmering of the African continent are two major issues that are receiving a great deal of attention from the international community. The problem of Algeria is one that has been simmering for many years, and it is time for the world to take notice.

The situation in Algeria is a complex one, involving political, economic, and social factors. The Algerian government is determined to maintain its independence, while the international community is concerned about the stability of the region. The simmering of events in the Sahara desert is also of great concern, as it involves the issues of oil and water resources.

The simmering of the African continent is a reminder of the challenges that face the continent, including poverty, inequality, and political instability. It is time for the world to take notice of these issues and work towards finding solutions.

The simmering of events in the Sahara desert, the simmering of the Arabian Peninsula, and the simmering of the African continent are all reminders of the challenges that face the world today. It is time for the world to take notice and work towards finding solutions.
DEAN EXPLOINS WHY U.S.A. WANTS DISARMAMENT BY STAGES

NEW YORK, May 15, (Reports).—Mr. Arthur Dean of the U.S.A. told the Disarmament Conference today that "we must not disturb the existing military posture while we do it."

Dean said that it was "an almost unanimous" idea that the disarmament process must be "staged" so that the world's military forces could be checked and reduced in a logical and orderly way.

Dean added that it was equally important that the disarming of military forces should be done "by stages" so that the nations concerned could adjust to the new situation.

He said that the United States would be willing to "start the process" of disarmament at once, but that it was important to "keep the international balance of power" in mind.

Dean's speech was part of the opening statements at the Disarmament Conference, which is scheduled to meet for the next four weeks.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

THE WEATHER

NEW YORK, May 15.—(Radio Station WABC) reported here last night that the first of the U.S. combat marines arrived at the base of Kumistai in Afghanistan and that they were still in the mountains. They had been ordered to stay for three days.

The marines were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.

IN AFGHANISTAN

KABUL, May 15.—Military force has been sent to join the United States marines in the mountains of Afghanistan.

The marines had been ordered to stay for three days, and it was reported that they would be joined by 500 men of the British army.

These British troops were reported to be in the mountains for the purpose of guarding the base of Kumistai against enemy action.