Text of Karmal's speech at 4th RC session

In this regard, the wily and duplicitous Soviet-backed jihadi forces have been emboldened by the treacherous and unilateral surrender of the Afghan government in late 1992, which has created a vacuum of authority and legitimacy in the region. This has enabled the jihadi forces to consolidate their control over vast swaths of territory, particularly in the north and east of Afghanistan. The resulting power vacuum has led to a proliferation of armed groups, including the Taliban, who have gained prominence and influence.

The fundamental wrong

The fundamental wrong that the jihadi forces seek to perpetrate is the systematic and systematic dismantling of the Afghan state, the destruction of its institutions, and the undermining of its sovereignty. This is done in the名义 of a "national liberation struggle," but in reality, it is aerra of self-serving and selfish interests. The jihadi forces have been able to gain the support of segments of the Afghan population, particularly those who are disillusioned with the Afghan government and its policies.

The implementation of radical policies

The implementation of radical policies has had a destabilizing effect on the region. The jihadi forces have imposed a strict interpretation of Islamic law, which has led to the suppression of civil liberties and human rights. This has resulted in a climate of repression and fear, which has further destabilized the region and created a breeding ground for extremist ideologies.

The struggle

In order to successfully defend the state and its institutions, the Afghan government must take decisive action. This includes the strengthening of its military capabilities, the bolstering of its diplomatic corps, and the engagement of the international community in order to provide support and assistance. The Afghan government must also address the root causes of instability, such as poverty, unemployment, and political corruption.

The international community

The international community has a critical role to play in supporting the Afghan government in its efforts to defend its institutions and policies. This includes providing financial assistance, technical expertise, and humanitarian aid. The international community must also work to address the root causes of instability, such as poverty and political corruption, in order to create a more stable and prosperous future for Afghanistan and the region.

Slav alphabet to Socialism:
13 centuries of Bulgaria

By Dr. Dimitrovska

The evolution of the Slav alphabet, the Cyrillic script, is closely connected with the history of Bulgaria and its Slav nationhood. The Cyrillic alphabet, developed in the 9th century by Christian clerics, is used in Bulgaria, Russia, Serbia, and other Slavic countries. It is the world's second most widely used alphabet after the Latin script.

In Bulgaria, the Cyrillic alphabet has been used for nearly 1300 years. It was introduced by St. Cyril and St. Methodius, two Byzantine missionaries who arrived in Bulgaria in the 9th century. They brought with them the knowledge of the Cyrillic alphabet and the Orthodox faith. The alphabet was adopted by the Bulgarian Orthodox Church and became the official script for the Bulgarian nation.

The Cyrillic alphabet has been a symbol of Bulgarian identity and resistance against foreign domination. It has been used in political slogans and revolutionary songs. The alphabet has also been used in literature and art, reflecting the cultural and historical development of the Bulgarian nation.

Today, the Cyrillic alphabet is still the official script of Bulgaria, used in all educational, cultural, and administrative activities. It is also used in the media, including television, radio, and newspapers. The Cyrillic alphabet has been an essential tool for the preservation and development of the Bulgarian language and culture.

After a year and a half of war in the southern region of Afghanistan, the country has entered a new stage of conflicts. The situation is complicated, and the peace talks have made little progress. However, there are signs of hope for a peaceful resolution. The international community has been closely watching the situation in Afghanistan and has called for an immediate ceasefire. The United Nations has announced a new initiative aimed at bringing the parties to the negotiating table. The initiative includes a series of measures to support the peace process, including the provision of humanitarian aid to Afghan civilians affected by the war.

Glimpses of other lands

Despite the ongoing conflict, Afghanistan remains a country with rich cultural and historical heritage. The country has a diverse population, with a mix of ethnic groups speaking different languages. The people of Afghanistan are known for their hospitality and their love for music and dance. The country is also famous for its beautiful mountainous landscapes and its vibrant festivals. However, the war has caused great suffering to the Afghan people, and there is a growing need for international support to help them rebuild their lives.

Solidarity with Afghan people

The Solidarity Movement, which seeks to establish a socialist government in Afghanistan, has been active in the country since the 1960s. The movement fought against the ruling monarchies and the opposition to the Islamic Republic. The Solidarity Movement was established by a group of intellectuals and politicians who were disillusioned with the existing political system. The movement was influenced by the ideas of Marxism-Leninism and sought to create a workers’ and peasants’ government.
