O.A.S. HALTS ITS ATROCITIES
Algerian Nationalists & Europeans Begin Talks

ALGIERS, June 2, (Reuters) — The O.A.S. has apparently halted its terror campaign—for the next few days.

The "truce" has been declared while preliminary talks are held between Europeans and OAS nationalists on the future of Europeans in Algeria. European and OAS sources confirmed yesterday that meeting between representatives of Dr. Nasser of Algeria and the European Provisional Executive, and Europeans.

European and OAS sources said the meetings were being held with the approval of the Algerian Provisional Government in Tunis, many of whose members are convinced by the unexpected large exodus of Europeans from Algeria.

One OAS told us the O.A.S. did not want the rest of Europe to develop on a Tunisian basis, which, he said, had gone into a steady decline since the Europeans left.

Some OAS members believe that M. Farès is trying to build a third force to mediate between the Europeans who remain and the Europeans of the National Liberation Army (A.L.N.) who have fought for years. According to pressure from Algerian nationalists, many of the field officers were disgruntled with the Fais Cease-fire Agreement and considered they had no reason to remain in the country.
