Economic Development

Under the Soviet Economic policy for 1979 the public sector will be given greater encouragement to the national economy in an attempt to boost production. More than 40 percent of the total industrial output is produced by the public sector right now. The natural gas industry, which has been built and expanded by the Soviet Union, constitutes the main pillar of the public sector in the country. One may say that the useful and fruitful cooperation existing between the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan and the Soviet Union is the main factor stimulating the economic development of Afghanistan.

THE LESSONS OF THE GREAT VICTORY

By V. K. Nair, Indian Political Analyst

The victory of the Soviet Union in the war against Afghanistan is a testament to the strength and determination of the Soviet people. This victory has shown the world that the Soviet Union is a formidable military power and that it is capable of defending its interests and values.

The lessons of this victory are many. First, it demonstrates the importance of unity and solidarity in the face of adversity. The Afghan people, under the leadership of their revolutionary government, showed无比的勇气 and resilience in their struggle against the invading forces. This unity and determination are essential if we are to overcome the challenges we face today.

Second, the victory has shown the world the power of collective action. The Soviet Union, with the support of other socialist countries, was able to prevail against its enemies. This is a reminder that we are stronger when we stand together and work towards common goals.

Finally, the victory has highlighted the importance of education and knowledge. The Afghan people have been able to overcome the challenges they face through education and the acquisition of knowledge. This is a lesson that we should all heed, as it is essential if we are to prepare for the challenges of the future.

AFGHAN SPORT FANS WILL SEE 1980 OLYMPICS LIVE

Who exaggerates? Me?

In a speech at the White House on Monday, President Carter said the United States was committed to a peaceful solution to the Middle East conflict. He also said the United States was prepared to use its influence to help bring about a peace agreement.

However, many critics believe that the United States is not doing enough to promote peace in the region. They argue that the United States should take a more active role in mediating negotiations between Israel and the Palestinians.

The Carter administration has been criticized for its reluctance to take a strong stance on issues related to the Middle East. Many believe that the United States should use its influence to pressure both sides to make concessions and to work towards a lasting peace.

Despite these criticisms, President Carter remains committed to the idea of a two-state solution. He has said that the United States is willing to provide economic and military assistance to both Israel and the Palestinians in order to help them reach a peaceful agreement.

But many believe that more needs to be done. They argue that the United States should be more proactive in its efforts to promote peace in the region, and that it should use its influence to pressure both sides to make the necessary concessions.

VOA FALSE REPORTS

KABUL, May 16 (AP). - A radio broadcast by the government-owned Radio Afghanistan, daring to call a recent United Nations accord a 'crime', said the accord indicates that the UN is 'under the control of certain imperialist powers.'

According to the broadcast, the accord agrees with the 'interests of the imperialists' and is an 'agreement for the destruction of African countries'.

The accord which a UN delegation signed in Addis Ababa last month, provides for a cease-fire in the five-year civil war in Ethiopia, and for the withdrawal of Cuban soldiers who had been deployed there under a non-aggression pact. The accord also provides for the withdrawal of 100,000 Soviet troops and 3,000 members of the People's Armed Forces of Ethiopia from the country. The two nations have also agreed to form a joint commission to supervise the withdrawal.

The accord was signed by Ethiopian Foreign Minister Ahmed Mohamed Ali and Cuban Foreign Minister Julio Anguita. It was also approved by the UN Security Council.

In an official statement, the UN described the accord as "an important step towards peace in Ethiopia," and said it was "an indication of the UN's continued commitment to the promotion of peace and security."
