SHUMER'S SELF-ASSESSMENT FOR SERVICE-LEARNING

QUINTESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF SERVICE-LEARNING

The Shumer Self-Assessment for Service-Learning (SSASL) is designed as a self-reflective system for professionals in the service-learning and experiential learning fields. What follows is a series of instruments and analysis worksheets arranged to help individuals evaluate their current service-learning initiatives to improve and strengthen them.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The development of these instruments and self-reflective processes is the result of a collective effort on the part of many people. Without the sincere cooperation and effort of these collaborators, this project would never have gotten off the ground.

There are many people and organizations that should be acknowledged for their outstanding contributions. Our effort to mention them here is a small token of thanks for the many hours of effort and thought that helped shape the current products and process.

I would like to first thank the Corporation for National Service and Marilyn Smith, Director of the Office of Service-Learning, who funded and supported the effort for three years. Their ability to mobilize financial and human resources was the driving force behind most of the work done on behalf of the Fund for the Advancement for Service-Learning (FASL), which created the opportunity to develop the ultimate instrument—the FASL SSASL!

Second, Pat Duttweiler (assisted by Susie Turbeville), from Clemson University, and Andy Furco (assisted by Hyung-Jung Lee), from UC Berkeley, performed invaluable work conducting interviews and evaluation in the field, and providing extensive feedback on the development of the instruments and process throughout the three-year period.

Third, Dale Blyth from the University of Minnesota 4-H Foundation, Alan Melchior from Brandeis University, and Tom Owens from the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory provided insightful feedback as Advisory Group members, suggesting many valuable ways to improve the nature of the self-reflective process. Their expertise and vision helped to shape the form of the instruments and the nature of the process.

Special thanks go to Center for Experiential Education and Service-Learning staff who were instrumental in developing the project. Graduate research coordinators/researchers Maddie Hengel and Gwen Willems helped revise sections of the instruments and conducted interviews with participants in individual and group settings. They also helped analyze data. Web designer Jodie Gustafson helped format the final document. Fiscal managers, Carol Ashton, Lorri Glazier, and Diane Burgers handled execution of the contracts and other financial matters. Michelle Kamenov, project coordinator, dealt with logistical arrangements for meetings, as well as processed forms for payments and assisted with materials development.

Last, the fifty-four participants, their programs, and the Learn and Serve Coordinators (Wade Brynelson, Kate Cumbo, Marllys Bucher/Carter Hendricks, Stan Potts, Joe Herrity, Kathy Gibson, Dick Grover, and Joe Follman) from eight great states (California, Colorado, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida) perhaps contributed the most through their professional review of the documents and their tremendous insight into what makes a good self-assessment system. Their commitment and comments helped shape the entire process.

SHUMER'S SELF-ASSESSMENT FOR SERVICE-LEARNING

Introduction

The purpose of this self-assessment is both formative and summative. It is designed to gather information helpful to you—to improve your service-learning initiative, report on it, publicize it, secure support for it, or seek funding for it. You can choose any of a variety of ways to use it. Your focus can be on a class, grade, school, district, etc. You choose how often to use it, and when. It can be used for formative purposes at the beginning of the semester or year, monitoring in the middle, and summative evaluation at the end.

This instrument was tested for three years with service-learning practitioners in eight states. The 23 statements are based upon the theories of experiential learning and several previous endeavors to establish standards for the service-learning field: the Alliance for Service-Learning in Educational Reform (ASLER) Standards, the Wingspread Principles, and the Essential Elements developed by the National Service-Learning Cooperative.

The instrument's 23 statements are organized in sections recommended by practitioners and researchers. This representation of service-learning includes five sections with a base of Culture and Context. Culture and Context, along with Philosophy and Purpose, describes the setting and environment for the service-learning initiatives. Policy and Parameters includes the school, district, and state policies and structures that prescribe the service-learning initiatives. The top two sections, Practice and Pedagogy and Assessment and Accountability, describe what is done to implement service-learning and how results are evaluated and reported.

Directions

STEP 1 Complete Part I: Quick Assessment.

The self-assessment system is divided up into two parts. Part I is a 23-question rapid assessment, designed to provide you with a quick analysis of the strengths and weaknesses of your initiative. The answers are “Weak,” “Needs Work,” or “Strong.” It will take only 10-15 minutes to complete.

STEP 2 Briefly Review Priorities for Improvement and Strengths of Your Service-Learning Initiative.

Once you have completed Part I, focus on the statements that cover areas you would like to improve. Identify areas in which you can most influence change in a reasonable amount of time and/or that are your highest priorities for improvement. By completing Part II, you can look at those weak areas in more depth.

STEP 3 Complete Part II: In-Depth Analysis.

Part II is a much longer and more detailed version of Part I. The 23 statements are the same in both versions. Part II questions provide the opportunity to focus your attention on some specific components of the Part I general statements.

For example, in Part I, Statement 14, you are asked whether “students are involved in selecting, developing, implementing, and assessing service-learning initiatives.” You respond in one of three ways: “Weak” (we don’t involve students); “Needs Work” (we do it sometimes, but not as often as we would like); or “Strong” (we do it all the time in all areas and this is one of the strengths of our practice). If you choose “Weak” or “Needs Work,” select Statement 14 on Part II, and there you will find five separate queries. Answering these questions will help you to think more critically about the range of issues in your service-learning initiative and plan changes to address problems in this area.

With Part II, you can decide to select individual statements, or you can decide to complete entire sections. It is your choice. Answer as few or as many questions as you have both time and inclination to pursue. Remember, the purpose for participating in a self-assessment process is to help you identify areas for improvement and potential strategies for that improvement. There are no right or wrong answers!

STEP 4 Plan and Take Action.

Follow Up. One of the most consistent things we learned during the three years of piloting this process is that instruments, by themselves, have limited value. The self-assessment process is enhanced most when individuals take the responses to the surveys and discuss the results with others knowledgeable about service-learning and educational reform. We encourage you to do the same. Fill out the Action Plan on the last page of this instrument. Be sure to share your responses with colleagues in your school, your district, and the larger service-learning community so that others can help you chart a course to ensure necessary improvements are made to develop the best initiative possible.

PART I: Quick Assessment

Before turning to Part I, examine

Your Service-Learning Context

To better assess your initiative, please explain the context in which you do service-learning.

We define service-learning as: _____

The purpose of our service-learning initiative/program is: _____

Our primary goal(s) for service-learning is (are): _____

Typical activities performed by students doing service-learning include: _____

We typically assess student learning and impact of service by: _____

This self-assessment is focused on our ___ district ___ school ___ other: _____

What aspect of our service-learning initiative do we especially want to evaluate? _____

Directions for Part I

For each of the 23 statements, choose and check off one response that indicates the current status of your service-learning initiative. Each statement represents a positive, desirable goal for effective service-learning. Consider having students and your colleagues (teachers, administrators, parents, and other community members) fill out Part I and discuss reflections as a group.

- Select “Weak” if the area or element is not in place or there are conditions that work against it. This is where you encounter “Barriers.”
- Select “Needs Work” if the area or element is in place, but needs improvement for effective practice.
- Select “Strong” if you think the area or element is in place and operating at a highly effective level. This is where “Assets” contribute to your initiative.

Upon Completion

Note which of the 23 statements you checked as “Weak” or “Needs Work.” For a more in-depth analysis of the areas you consider most important to change or most in need of improvement, complete only the corresponding questions on PART II. The second part provides more in-depth questions for each part of items in Part I.

I. Culture and Context The social and personal climate, as well as the larger setting, in which service-learning is planned and implemented	Weak (Barrier)	Needs Work	Strong (Asset)
1. Cooperative connections between school and community are valued.
2. The role of service in improving individual and community quality of life is valued.
3. Involving students in the development of the learning program is valued.
4. Learning through real world experience is considered integral to the school and community.
II. Philosophy and Purpose The ideas, reasons, intentions, and rationale that guide your service-learning practice	Weak (Barrier)	Needs Work	Strong (Asset)
5. The purpose(s) of our S-L program is(are) clear to everyone involved.
6. We consider S-L important in improving teaching and learning.
7. Our school and/or district's philosophy includes service as a vehicle for learning.
8. The purpose of our initiative is clearly linked to meaningful activities and learning objectives.
III. Policy and Parameters Formal, organizational elements that define service-learning through administrative policies and support, state and district mandates, board of education policies, school structures, etc.	Weak (Barrier)	Needs Work	Strong (Asset)
9. Our schedules are flexible enough to allow us to meet S-L participant needs.
10. We have specific curricular goals and guidelines that support S-L initiatives.
11. There is sustained administrative commitment for developing and implementing S-L initiatives.
12. The district's and/or school's policies support effective S-L.
13. There is ongoing pertinent staff development for all members of our S-L initiative.
IV. Practice and Pedagogy What teachers, students, community partners, and administrators do to implement service-learning	Weak (Barrier)	Needs Work	Strong (Asset)
14. Students play an active role in selecting, developing, implementing, and assessing S-L initiatives.
15. Structured student reflection encourages critical thinking and is central to fulfillment of curricular objectives.
16. Our program includes training, supervision, and monitoring of S-L and all people involved.
17. S-L students are engaged in responsible and challenging actions for the common good that meet genuine needs in the school or community and have significant consequences.
18. Student learning through service is directly tied to regular class objectives and activities.
19. S-L occurs during regular school hours.
V. Assessment and Accountability Evidence that the service-learning initiative is meeting its goals and the process and results are being reported	Weak (Barrier)	Needs Work	Strong (Asset)
20. Our assessment plan is clear, purposeful, and linked to state standards and district learning objectives.
21. Our assessment process is appropriately frequent and thorough.
22. Our assessment looks at the different sectors (students, teachers, parents, community, school, etc.) involved in S-L.
23. Our assessment secures enough pertinent data to measure effectiveness and guide improvement.

Summary of Part I

Planning for Part II

To establish priorities for a more in-depth analysis of your initiative, please write on this page the three statements or sections you identified in Part I as highest priorities for improvement. These are statements to which you answered either "Weak" or "Needs Work." Also include the top three strengths, with "1" being the highest priority.

Priorities for improvement

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

Strengths

1. _____

2. _____

3. _____

PART II: In-Depth Analysis

Directions for Part II

Use your Part I responses to complete only the comments and questions in Part II that correspond to the numbered statements in Part I that you considered “Weak” or “Needs Work.” (For example, if you checked “Weak” for Statement 4, “The purpose of our S-L program is clear,” make comments and answer the two statements under Number 4 in this part of the assessment.)

Part II of this instrument is designed to help you examine in more detail portions of your program that you want to improve. The same 23 statements that you answered in Part I are repeated here. The major difference is that each statement has a series of sub-statements that will help you think more critically about what components of the issue need to be addressed. When the statements have relevance to more than one section, they are repeated in the appropriate sections.

A primary purpose for this survey is to help you examine issues about your program that need improvement. If any question is unclear, answer it as best you can, knowing that the instrument will serve as a point for discussion as you become further engaged in the self-assessment process. It is not necessary to complete this survey; address those questions that will help you further analyze areas for improvement.

Section I. Culture and Context

The social and personal climate, as well as the larger setting in which service-learning is planned and implemented

Please use the following to assess your overall “impression” of service-learning in your setting. If you work in service-learning in multiple settings, please choose one on which to concentrate. Write your answers in the space provided and/or use additional paper, if necessary. Mark the response that most closely describes the culture and context that exist in your school or district. District culture is the overall climate created by all of the stakeholders together—students, teachers, administrators, and community members.
1. Cooperative Connections Between School and Community Are Valued.
A) Students value cooperative educative connections between school and community.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
B) Teachers value cooperative educative connections between school and community.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
C) Administrators value cooperative educative connections between school and community.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
D) Community members value cooperative educative connections between school and community.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
E) We value cooperation among all stakeholders: students, teachers, administrators, parents, and other community members.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:

2. The Role of Service in Improving Individual and Community Quality of Life Is Valued.
A) District and school values are consistent.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
B) The role of service in improving individual and community quality of life is valued by stakeholders: students, teachers, administrators, parents, and other community members.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
C) Youth are valued as resources for solving community problems.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
D) The knowledge and skills of community members are valued.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:

3. Involving Students in the Development of the Learning Initiative Is Valued.
A) Our students are involved in the learning program's development (students identify projects, make community contacts, implement the project step-by-step, evaluate the initiative, etc.).
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
B) Teachers recognize and value student involvement in program development.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:

C) Administrators recognize and value student involvement in program development.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
D) Parents recognize and value student involvement in program development.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:

4. Learning Through Real World Experience Is Considered Integral to the School and Community.
A) Relevance of learning experiences tied to the lives of students is valued by all stakeholders.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:
B) The role of reform and change in educational improvement is valued by all stakeholders.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak Value <input type="radio"/> Medium Value <input type="radio"/> Strong Value	Comments:

Other Issues of Culture and Context You Consider Important:

Section II. Philosophy and Purpose

The ideas, reasons, intentions, and rationale that guide your service-learning initiative. In this section, focus on what you hope students will learn from involvement in the service-learning initiative.

Mark the response that most closely describes the philosophy and purpose that exist in your school or district. Write your answers in the space provided and/or use additional paper, if necessary.
5. The Purpose(s) of our S-L Program Is(Are) Clear to Everyone Involved.
A) Teachers involved in our service-learning initiative understand its purpose.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
B) Students involved in our service-learning initiative understand its purpose.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
C) Community members involved in our service-learning initiative understand its purpose.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
D) Administrators involved in our service-learning initiative understand its purpose.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:

6. We Consider S-L Important in Improving Teaching and Learning.
A) The philosophy that guides the purpose of our initiative is . . . (e.g., students learn citizenship skills by meeting community needs or attempting to solve community problems)
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
B) Our service-learning philosophy fits in with the educational philosophy of the district.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:

7. Our School and/or District's Philosophy Includes Service as a Vehicle for Learning.
A) Our district and school values are consistent.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
B) Our philosophy of educational improvement assumes service-learning fits in the educational change process in the following ways—students help develop learning objectives, appear excited about what they are learning, and take more responsibility.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
C) Our teachers understand the philosophy of our service-learning initiative.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
D) Our students understand the philosophy of our service-learning initiative.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
E) Our administrators understand the philosophy of our service-learning initiative.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
F) Our community members understand the philosophy of our service-learning initiative.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:

8. The Purpose of Our Initiative Is Clearly Linked to Academic Activities and Learning Objectives.
A) The service-learning initiative serves several complementary purposes, which include (for example, dropout prevention, academic enrichment, etc.):
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
B) School and community work together to develop the service-learning initiative, especially the learning outcomes.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:
C) School and community objectives for our service-learning initiative are mutually consistent.
Choose One: <input type="radio"/> Weak <input type="radio"/> Needs Work <input type="radio"/> Strong	Comments:

Other Issues of Philosophy and Purpose You Consider Important:

Section III. Policy and Parameters

Formal organizational elements that define service-learning through administrative policies and support, state and district mandates, board of education policies, school structures, etc. Please describe the specific policies and parameters that influence your ability to implement high-quality service-learning initiatives.

Note to Administrators: * indicates questions specifically for administrators

Mark the response that most closely describes the policies and parameters that exist in your school or district. Write your answers in the space provided and/or use additional paper, if necessary.
9. Our Schedules Are Flexible Enough to Allow Us to Meet S-L Participant Needs.
A) Our school-day schedule allows students to engage in service activities as follows (considerations for this question include your school's scheduling, e.g .modular, block, etc., and what aspects of service-learning, i.e., projects, school-to-work, etc., are scheduled into the school day):
i) flexibility in schedule
Rigid/non-flexible ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Very flexible	Comments:
ii) time units
Short/inadequate blocks of time ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Longer/adequate blocks of service-learning time	Comments:
B) The time students spend doing service is integrated into regular course activities.
Not integrated ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Fully integrated	Comments:
C) The balance between the time students spend doing service during and outside the school day is the most appropriate to achieve the highest quality of service-learning experience.
No balance ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Most appropriate balance	Comments:

10. We Have Specific Curricular Goals and Guidelines That Support S-L Initiatives.

A) Service-learning is integrated into the curricula.

No integration ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Full and appropriate integration

Comments:

B) Service-learning curriculum is developed jointly by students, community members, and staff.

Only staff (non-collaborative) ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Totally collaborative

Comments:

C) Policies and standards for service-learning in our school, district, or state are characterized by the following:

i) The following describes requirements for graduation from our school:

No mandate for service or service-learning ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Mandate for service or service-learning

If service-learning is mandated, by whom? _____

If service-learning is mandated, how? _____

Subjects or courses (e.g., English) _____

Classes (e.g., Writing 10A) _____

Hours _____

Honor projects _____

Extracurricular _____

D) There are policies for awarding of academic credit.

There is no specific policy for granting credit for service-learning. ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Academic credit for service-learning is granted according to school/district policy.
Comments:

E) Our service-learning initiative is available to all students who want to participate.

Available only to a specific group ① ② ③ ④ ⑤ Open to all students
Comments:

Describe the specific group, if this applies. Explain why they were selected.

11. There Is Sustained Administrative Commitment for Developing and Implementing S-L Initiatives.

A) Administrative support for our service-learning effort can be characterized as follows:

i) Level of support (circle one number for each administrative level). Select “varies” if the support fluctuates during the year, identifying the range of variation. For example, if support varies between 2 and 4, connect them by drawing a line between the two.

	Low			High		Varies

What's Next? Creating an Action Plan

Remember that the purpose of this self-assessment process is to provide you with useful information that can guide improvements of your service-learning initiative. To move from information to action, use this sheet to help develop an explicit plan and decide how to assess progress toward improvement of your initiative.

Strengths of our service-learning initiative

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Areas for improvement

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Action steps to improve our service-learning initiative

Action priority 1

What? _____

By whom? _____

By when? _____

How to assess changes? _____

Action priority 2

What? _____

By whom? _____

By when? _____

How to assess changes? _____

Internal resources (e.g., other teachers, parents): _____

External resources (e.g., university, state department of education): _____

Now that you have identified strengths and weaknesses of your initiative, it will help to share this with other service-learning practitioners, especially those who will help you improve your practice. Follow up with colleagues in your school, district, and larger service-learning community to both discuss the results of this assessment and choose ways to make the improvements you have identified as most needed for your service-learning initiative.

Monitoring the Action Plan

Use copies of this sheet to periodically review progress and revise plans for improving your service-learning initiative.
