NEW YORK DISARM TALKS POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 (UPI) - The disarmament talks in New York began with the presence of James F. Byrnes, U.S. Secretary of State, and the Soviet Union's Foreign Minister, but they dragged on without results.

Although both sides refrained from revealing any details concerning the talks, UPI reported that a possible agreement on a number of issues was reached.

The Soviets agreed to a very limited inspection of nuclear weapons and to the creation of a permanent international organization.

The talks were unsuccessful and appeared to be a failure. They were scheduled to resume in a period of several years.

The New York talks, as they have been called, were among the last prominent events in the history of the United Nations.
