Jordan Bound To Live In Framework Of Arab Unity, Says New Premier

AMMAN, Jordan, March 30 (AP)—Jordan's new Premier, Prince Hassan bin Talal, said Friday that a framework of Arab unity is being set up in Jordan.

Informed sources said in Amman that King Hussein, who returned home from the U.S. on Friday, named Prince Hassan to form a new Cabinet.

The new Premier, who is the son of King Hussein, succeeds Prince Faisal, who died in Washington, D.C., last week.

The sources said the new Cabinet will be set up in due course.

Nuclear Policy

Main Election Issue: Macmillan

LONDON, March 30 (AP)—Britain's Labor Party said Friday that its 1960 election campaign theme would be nuclear policy and the 'two-minute warning' against nuclear war.

The Labor Party has decided to concentrate on a national debate on nuclear policy, a spokesman said.

The spokesman said the government has set aside a two-minute warning against nuclear war, but has not made any decision on the matter.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has said that the government has not made any decision on the matter.

Iraqi Delegation Backs "Arab World" Against Nuclear Threats

A delegation of Arab states representing the "Arab world" has returned to Baghdad after a week of meetings with Western powers in Paris and London.

The delegation was headed by Foreign Minister Ahmed Shafik of Egypt, who said that the "Arab world" was committed to disarming nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction.

The delegation has been focusing on the issue of nuclear arms, which is a major concern for the Arab states and the international community.

The "Arab world" has consistently called for a comprehensive ban on nuclear weapons, including research, development, and testing.

The delegation has met with Western leaders to discuss the issue of nuclear arms and to express concerns about the proliferation of nuclear weapons.
