BRITAIN AND THE BATTLE OF MAIWAND

The battle of Maiwand, fought on 27 July 1879, was a major engagement during the Second Anglo-Afghan War. The British forces, commanded by General Garnet Wolseley, were defeated by the Afghan Army. The battle marked the beginning of the British withdrawal from Afghanistan.

The battle was part of a larger campaign that included the siege of Kandahar. The British forces were unable to sustain their defensive line, and eventually capitulated after a prolonged siege.
