CROSS-SECTION OF TRANSISTORS

This is a three-dimensional model of a solid-state transistor. The different layers of the model represent the various materials used in its construction. The model is made of plastic and is used in educational and training programs to demonstrate how these tiny devices work. The transistor is a key component in modern electronics, allowing for the miniaturization of devices and the development of complex circuits.
U.S. Senate To Vote On Test Ban Amendment Today

Defeat of Move Sure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23, (AP).- The Senate succeeds today on its third reading of an amendment to the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty which would prevent President Johnson from signing the pact.

The Senate has voted to reject an amendment to the treaty which would make it more difficult for the United States to abandon the ban on nuclear tests.

President Johnson has stated that he will sign the treaty if it is adopted by the Senate.

The amendment, sponsored by Sen. Al Gore, D-Tenn., and Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., would require the president to certify that the treaty will not impair the national security of the United States.

The Senate has voted to reject the amendment by a margin of 60-39.

If the Senate adopts the amendment, it will have to wait for the House to pass it as well.

The Senate has voted to adopt the amendment by a margin of 57-43.

The treaty would ban all nuclear tests, including those conducted underground or on ships.
