Yesterday's Irish carried an editorial on the possible results of the next election by Mr. John A. Costello. The editorial is based on an analysis of the present political situation and the general trends in the country over the过去 five years. The article discusses the role of the government and the opposition in the election, and the prospects for a change in government leadership.

The Irish Times also carried an editorial on the same topic, which states that the government's policies have been beneficial to the country, and that the opposition is not likely to gain a majority in the next election. The editorial argues that the government's economic policies have been successful, and that the opposition's proposals are not well thought out.

The New York Times commented on the political situation in the country, stating that the government's policies have been beneficial to the country, and that the opposition is not likely to gain a majority in the next election. U.S. Presidential Campaign
Middle Or Late Jan. Time
For Goldwater To Say He'll Run
WASHINGTON, Sept. 3, (AP) — A Senator Barry Goldwater, conservative Republican, considering a late primary challenge for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, said that the middle or late January would be "a good time" for him to announce whether he will seek the nomination.

The Arizona Senator acknowledged that exit polls of the nuclear test ban treaty passed by the Senate last week might hurt him in a political campaign, but he explained his reasoning this way in a taped radio interview:

"I'm convinced a large yield, 500-100 megaton, detonated in the air or in the ocean could put out of communi- cation all of our communications systems and bring about the end of our own... I felt I had to have 20 years to learn about this... I'm convinced the Russians know the answers.

Senator Goldwater discussed at length the possibility of an attack on the distant moon about Aug. 3 that some Soviet scientists thought might have been nuclear in origin, and said it was as a volcanic eruption or classic collapse of a huge collapse.

"I think I can say I believe that the United States sent ships to that area to collect debris to determine if it was a radioactive explosion..."

But to that I think I have heard nothing officially saying that it was an atomic or nuclear-type explosion..."

He said the matter was kept so secret that "I was prevented from asking" a question of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee. He added he was convinced, however, the disturbance was caused by a volcano.

The U.S.Atomic Energy Commission has said it has no evi- dence of an explosion of any kind, which could have had a serious effect on the moon, the Senate treaty debate then under way.

Senator Goldwater also said it was "impossible for Congress to so quickly assume the nation's civil and tax responsibilities as a matter of time remaining in this session.

He received no help from Cosa Nostra when he had no money and with the law, he said. He had to hire his own lawyer, and his own bondsman.

The only protection the organization afforded was from other mobsters, who were "after his necks." When this happened, he was retired and instantaneously invoked the iron discipline of the organization and the almighty.

And what did Valachi do in his turn for Cosa Nostra? "he said.
