U.S.R. Launches Another Satellite

MOSCOW, Nov. 7 (AP)—The U.S.S.R. on Friday launched its 23rd earth satellite, which is to be used for meteorological observations and the periodical broadcast of government, industrial, and agricultural information.

The minister and the news service commented on earlier reports about the limited range of the satellite's radar signals.

A UN and World Health Organization (WHO) mission to the country examined the health conditions and the state of the medical facilities. The mission was to provide technical assistance and support the efforts of the Afghan health authorities.

The mission, led by the WHO representative, visited various hospitals and health centers to assess the situation and provide recommendations for improvement.

The visit was part of a broader collaboration between the WHO and the Afghan government to strengthen public health services, emphasize preventive measures, and combat communicable diseases.

Yale Professor Released by USSR Arrives in London

LONDON, Nov. 7 (AP)—An academician who had been held by the Soviet authorities for several years has been freed and arrived here from the Soviet Union.

His release followed negotiations between the two countries and the release of other academicians held by the USSR.

This is the second release of academicians from the USSR in recent months, following the release of another academician in October.

The academician held by the USSR had been involved in research related to public health and social welfare.

The release was seen as a positive development in the ongoing efforts to improve relations between the two nations and facilitate the exchange of knowledge and expertise.

The academician will be greeted by a delegation from the Ministry of Health, who will discuss ways to promote cooperation in the field of public health between the two countries.

Meeting in Moscow
Stresses Value of Soviet-U.S. Ties

The meeting of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the Soviet Union and the United States, which ended on Friday, reaffirmed the desire of the two countries to improve and strengthen their relations. It was decided to expand the framework of bilateral cooperation, including economic and cultural exchanges.

Dr. Keshawarz, the Soviet Foreign Minister, expressed the view that a closer partnership based on mutual respect and understanding is essential for the prosperity of both nations. He also reiterated the Soviet Union's stance that the resolution of the Afghan issue should be achieved through peaceful means.

In his response, the U.S. Secretary of State emphasized the importance of dialogue and cooperation to address the challenges of the time. He acknowledged the significant contributions of the Soviet Union in various fields, including agricultural development and scientific research.

The meeting was an opportunity for both sides to discuss key issues, including the situation in Afghanistan and the need for a comprehensive approach to regional stability.

Indian Premier Against Pakistan

The meeting between the Indian and Pakistani leaders focused on ways to resolve the long-standing conflict between the two countries. The Indian Premier expressed concerns about Pakistan's support for militant groups and its role in the instability in the region.

Pakistan's Prime Minister, on the other hand, emphasized the importance of dialogue and the need to address genuine concerns. He stressed the need for Pakistan to refrain from supporting terrorism and to engage in meaningful talks.

The meeting aimed to pave the way for a fresh start in bilateral relations, but the progress was slow and fraught with challenges.

Ex-Convicts in U.K.
Demand Reforms in Prisons

Ex-prisoners held in U.K. prisons, including former members of the Afghan resistance, have called for reform in the prison system. They have cited instances of torture and inadequate legal representation as major concerns.

The protestors, led by former militant leader and human rights activist, have launched a campaign to raise awareness about the plight of prisoners. They have called for the establishment of independent human rights bodies and the implementation of international treaties on prisoners' rights.

The government has responded by announcing a review of the prison system, with a focus on improving conditions and ensuring fair treatment of prisoners.
