No British Negotiations With Common Market In Sight Despite Home’s Speech

Though the British Prime Minister announced that he would meet with the European Common Market Chairman during his forthcoming official visit to London, it seems that any negotiations with the Common Market will have to wait until the EEC leaders meet in Brussels on January 16. The EEC leaders have already voted in favor of Britain’s application for membership, and are now expected to discuss the financial compensation Britain will receive if it is given the go-ahead to enter the Common Market.
