Israel Fears Armed Clash
Over Use Of Jordan Waters

JERUSALEM, Israeli Sector, April 29, (Reuters),—

SHAKEL, Foreign Minister Mrs. Golda Meir today predicted that an armed clash over the Arab plan to divert the headwaters of the Jordan River on April 28, could be averted if the Arabs “step now.”

Weary of wrangling the joint committees of the Nasserite-Palestinian-Israeli and Jordanian-Palestinian-Israeli Rivers, she has proposed that the joint committee of the Jordan River be on the spot to discuss the problem of the Jordan River and Jordan River flora and fauna, in an effort to prevent any armed clash.

As to the western part of the Jordan River, the Prime Minister has,” she said, “received all the reports and reports from all the joint committees.”

However, he added, “we have said that if the other side has any objections to the joint committee, we will not accept it.”

This would mean that the joint committee would be a “violation of the principle of non-aggression.”

The Agency said in a report released in Tokyo that the South Vietnamese aircraft opened fire after encountering hostile ground fire in Phu Yen, about 35 mile southeast of Dong Du, which is 50 mile north of the border.

While the American and South Vietnamese aircraft were engaging a variety of targets, four B-100 bombers destroyed four North Vietnamese cities and dropped one million leaflets.
