Soviet Revolution belongs to absolute majority

The Soviet Revolution is the greatest and the most important event of our epoch. It has set a fundamental example of the real social revolution and the establishment of a new world order. The Soviet Revolution has demonstrated the power and might of the masses of the workers, farmers and intellectuals, who have united in a single force to overthrow the old order and establish a new one.

Foreign trade as an instrument of equal cooperation

By A. Kondratiev

The foreign trade of the Soviet Union today is based on the principle of equal cooperation. This principle is embodied in the treaties and agreements concluded with the countries of the world. The treaties are not only of a commercial nature, but also include provisions for the development of cultural, scientific, and technical cooperation.

Safeguarding peace in Europe

In the struggle to achieve peace in Europe, the role of the international community is paramount. The Moscow summit, held recently, was a significant step towards this goal. It was agreed that the withdrawal of foreign troops from Europe should proceed on a timetable determined by the European nations themselves. This was a clear victory for those who believe in the principle of self-determination.
