TOKYO, Jan 22 (Tass) - Governor of Tokyo S. Suzuki has announced the decision to dismiss more than 500 workers and employees of the Tokyo municipal council. The council, however, tries to reduce at the expense of the working people the huge financial deficit of the capital city. The trade union organizations in Tokyo resolutely denounced the decision and intend to intensify actions in reply to the authorities' arbitrary rule about the so-called 'Afghan', 'Iranian' and 'Persian' issues have made the US activity at major international meetings and conferences look like attempts to 'get a free hand for direct interference in the internal affairs of sovereign states, while openly ignoring the basic provisions of the UN Charter'.
New phase a panacea for Saur gains

By Gwynn Lewis

The recent gains of the pro-Soviet opposition in Afghanistan have been attributed to a new phase in their struggle, which has given them a significant advantage in the regional power struggle. This new phase has led to increased support from the Soviet Union and other communist countries, which has allowed them to consolidate their power and expand their influence.

The success of the opposition can be attributed to several factors. Firstly, the economic difficulties faced by the Afghan government have led to increased dissatisfaction among the population, particularly among the rural areas. This has provided a fertile ground for the opposition to gain support and influence.

Secondly, the international community has been divided on the issue of support for the Afghan government. While some countries, such as the United States, have continued to support the government, others, such as the Soviet Union, have provided significant support to the opposition. This has further strengthened the opposition's position and allowed them to gain control in several territories.

Lastly, the opposition has been able to effectively use propaganda and rhetoric to mobilize support among the Afghan population. This has allowed them to gain a significant advantage in the region and has led to increased international recognition.

Overall, the new phase in the Afghan opposition's struggle has been a significant turning point in the regional power struggle. It has allowed them to consolidate their power and gain increased international recognition, which will undoubtedly have a significant impact on the future of Afghanistan.

Ninety-one apartments given to workers' families

By the New Reporter

The housing situation in the city has improved significantly with the provision of ninety-one apartments to workers' families. This initiative by the government has been widely acclaimed by the residents, who have expressed their gratitude for the support.

The new apartments were provided to workers in various sectors, including manufacturing, construction, and services. This has made housing more accessible to the working-class population, thereby improving their living standards.

The government's decision to provide housing to workers has been seen as a major step towards addressing housing shortages in the city. It has also been praised for its efforts towards social welfare and worker rights.

The residents have expressed their appreciation for the government's efforts, stating that it has significantly improved their quality of life. They have also praised the government for its commitment to improving the living conditions of the working-class population.

The new apartments have been well-received, with many residents expressing their happiness at finally having access to proper housing. It has also been seen as a step towards reducing the number of homeless people in the city.

Overall, the provision of ninety-one apartments to workers' families has been a significant achievement by the government. It has improved the housing situation in the city and has been widely acclaimed by the residents, who have expressed their gratitude for the support.

Moscow's view on change of leadership in Washington

By Richard Young, AP-Paris Correspondent

The recent change in leadership in Washington has been viewed with interest in Moscow. The new administration has been seen as a possible shift in US foreign policy, which may have implications for the relationship between the two countries.

While the new administration has been praised for its commitment to improving the lives of its citizens, Moscow has expressed concerns about the potential shift in foreign policy. There has been speculation about the possibility of the new administration withdrawing from international agreements or pursuing policies that may be seen as anti-Russian.

Moscow has been a consistent advocate for closer relations with the US, and the new administration has been seen as an opportunity to strengthen ties. However, there are concerns about the potential for tension or conflict, particularly in light of the current geopolitical climate.

The new administration has stated its commitment to international cooperation, but there is a growing sense of uncertainty about the future of the relationship between the two countries. Moscow will need to carefully navigate the new administration's policies to ensure the continuity of friendly relations.

Overall, Moscow's view on the change of leadership in Washington is one of cautious optimism, with concerns about the potential for tension or conflict. It will be important to monitor the new administration's policies to ensure the continuity of friendly relations.
US advisers in Honduras

BUREAU of WPC Presidency meets

Testing range for forecasting earthquake

Decolonization Committee starts debate

Chemical weapons should be banned

Pravda on WPC Presidency

People support formation of natl fatherland front

WORLD YOUTH FORUM

Terrorists captured

Labour Party holds extraordinary conference

OAU reiterates support for SWAPO's struggle