Imports Rise 14.5 Per Cent
In U.S. During Last Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27-The United States imports were up 14.5 per cent during the year, reaching a total of over $4.5 billion, according to the U.S. Department of Commerce.

The rise in imports is due to a combination of several factors. One of the major factors is the increase in the demand for foreign goods by U.S. consumers.

In addition, the value of the dollar has declined, making foreign goods cheaper in terms of U.S. dollars.

The data also shows that the trade deficit has increased, further indicating the trend of increased imports.
