COAL MINES

In addition to the grievance and strikes, there have been few other clashes between some of which are relatively minor, but others more serious. The situation is considered manageable for now.

On the other hand, some localities where the problem is more pronounced have been hit especially hard. The government has taken steps to address the situation and maintain peace and order.

There are numerous signs of unrest and tension in parts of the country. In order to achieve increased production, it is necessary to work together and bring about a more efficient and modern working environment in all sectors of the economy. This will require the cooperation of all stakeholders.

The government has taken several measures to address the situation, such as increasing the allocation of funds for development projects and introducing incentives for investors. These efforts are expected to yield positive results in the near future.

Education Schools in Afghanistan: For All Grades

By MAHBOOB SHEIKH

As mentioned in the previous article of this series, Afghanistan is undergoing rapid changes in education. The government is committed to providing education to all its citizens, regardless of gender, ethnicity, or social status. Here are the latest developments in education in Afghanistan:

- Primary Education: The government has increased the enrollment rate in primary schools. The recent census shows a significant increase in the number of students enrolled in primary schools.
- Secondary Education: The government is working on improving the quality of secondary education. New schools are being built, and existing schools are being upgraded to provide better learning environments.
- Higher Education: The government is also focusing on higher education. Many universities are being established, and existing ones are being renovated to meet international standards.

The Challenges: Afghanistan is facing several challenges in education. The country has a significant number of internally displaced persons (IDPs) who require education. The government is working hard to provide them with access to education. Additionally, the Taliban's influence in some areas is hindering the delivery of education.

The Future: The government is committed to improving education in Afghanistan. The new education minister has outlined a five-year plan that aims to increase enrollment rates and improve the quality of education. The plan includes the construction of new schools, the renovation of existing ones, and the provision of educational materials.

A CASE EXAMPLE OF NON-COOPERATION

The members of the Afghan delegation to the ECAFE conference, which was held last year in Tokyo, have divided several speeches on the economic development of Afghanistan and its role in the world economy. The discussions centered on the need for cooperation between nations and the benefits of such cooperation.

What is the impact of non-cooperation in Afghanistan? Any country that chooses to cooperate will be helped by industrial nations and international organizations. The Afghan delegation representatives made it clear that any nation or group of nations that do not cooperate will suffer. Afghan cooperation is crucial to global development.

Pakhtunistan: Baseless Pakistani Charges Against Afghanistan

The government of Pakistan has made several statements regarding the security situation in Afghanistan. Pakistan claims that Afghanistan is harboring terrorists and that the Taliban is a Pakistani creation. These claims are baseless and are made to divert attention from Pakistan's own role in the region.

The Afghan government has rejected these claims and has called for Pakistan to change its policy towards Afghanistan. The government is committed to building a stable and peaceful Afghanistan, and it will not tolerate any external aggression.

CULTIVATION OF COTTON IN AFGHANISTAN

Effort To Improve Quality and Quantity

Cotton is the product of one of the provinces of the Middle East. In Afghanistan, its historical staple crop was cotton, but the production of cotton has decreased significantly in recent years. The Afghan government has identified cotton as a priority crop and is working on improving its cultivation.

In recent years, the Afghan government has implemented several programs to increase cotton production. These programs include the provision of seedlings, agricultural inputs, and technical assistance.
