Education in Afghanistan:
The School of Commerce

By DEHSHAI SHEIKH

This school was set up at Khujir in 1949 with the express purpose of providing commercial education to girls in the country. It is the only school for the education of girls in the country, excluding Kabul. It was started with the help of the Government of Pakistan, which donated the land and buildings. The school is affiliated with the Ministry of Education and is under the control of a board of governors appointed by the government. The school offers courses in commerce, accounting, and business management for girls aged 12 to 18. The curriculum includes subjects such as English, mathematics, economics, and business studies. The school has a capacity of 100 students and is currently enrolling new students. It is located in the outskirts of Kabul and provides a conducive environment for learning. The school is well-equipped with modern facilities and resources to support the educational needs of the students. The school also offers vocational training in pharmacy and business administration. The school aims to prepare students for successful careers in the commercial sector and to contribute to the economic development of Afghanistan. It is worth noting that the school has been supported by the Afghan government and various international organizations, and it continues to receive funding and assistance to enhance its educational programs. The school's website is under construction, and further information can be obtained through the Ministry of Education in Kabul.
