The Afghan delegation at the Moscow Conference on Peace in Afghanistan was led by Abdul. Majid, the Afghan Ambassador to Tokyo. On Saturday, the delegation submitted a report to General Secretary of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Mikhail Gorbachev, and the Conference was adjourned.

As a result of the Moscow Conference, several developments are expected to take place in Afghanistan. The Afghan delegation has reportedly agreed to the withdrawal of Soviet forces from Afghanistan, a point which was under discussion during the conference. The Afghan government has also expressed a willingness to engage in talks with the Taliban, provided that their demands are met.

In other developments, the U.S. government has announced that it will increase aid to Afghanistan, with a focus on economic development and reconstruction. This move comes after several years of military intervention in the region, which has had a significant impact on the Afghan economy.

The situation in Afghanistan remains tense, with reports of ongoing conflict and violence. However, the Moscow Conference seems to have brought some progress towards a peaceful resolution of the conflict.

Rehabilitation Of The Helmand Valley

By M. FARRANG

The new Horizons spread by the British and American forces in the last war, with the victory of the Afghan people, has made possible the realization of one of the greatest hopes of the Afghan nation. The Helmand Valley, which was once a desert, is now being transformed into a fertile land. The rehabilitation work is being carried out under the supervision of the Afghan government, with the help of foreign experts.

The Helmand Valley is located in the south of Afghanistan, between Kandahar and Lashkar Gah. It is one of the largest and most fertile valleys in the country. The valley is about 100 miles long and 50 miles wide, and it is divided into two parts by the Helmand River. The valley is known for its rich agricultural land and its abundant water resources.

The rehabilitation work includes the construction of canals, the planting of crops, and the improvement of irrigation systems. The government has also provided training for the local farmers to help them better utilize the resources of the valley. The work is being carried out with the help of foreign experts and organizations.

The rehabilitation of the Helmand Valley is an important step in the development of Afghanistan. It will not only improve the living standard of the people in the valley, but it will also contribute to the development of the entire country.
NEW TAXES IN INDIA
Move To Wipe Out Budget Deficit
NEW DELHI, April 26, (Reuters).—Under Finance Minister. Mr. Morarji Desai, the new Congress government has decided to impose new taxes to wipe out its budget deficit. The move follows a recent appeal by the United Kingdom Prime Minister. Mr. Harold Wilson, for a global tax on air travel to help finance the United Nations. The proposed tax rates range from 5 to 15 per cent on the total amount of air travel by an individual. The new taxes, which will be announced in the next few days, are expected to raise an additional Rs. 1,000 million to Rs. 2,000 million per year, according to estimates. The government is also exploring the possibility of introducing a 5 per cent surcharge on all imports to help finance the deficit. The Finance Minister said that the government was determined to close all possible avenues to raise revenue and that the new taxes were part of a comprehensive package to ensure fiscal discipline. The move is likely to be debated in the parliament in the coming weeks.
