VIOLENT STRUGGLE CONTINUES

A violent struggle continues in Afghanistan, with reports of clashes between government forces and opposition groups. The situation remains tense, with both sides claiming advances. Diplomatic efforts to find a peaceful resolution continue, but so far, there is no sign of a breakthrough.

WEST GERMANY—U.S. DIFFERENCES OVER BERLIN ISSUE

The United States and West Germany are at odds over the issue of Berlin. The U.S. has threatened to withdraw its nuclear forces from West Germany if the U.S.S.R. continues to build up its military presence in Berlin. West Germany, however, has resisted these demands, saying that it cannot be forced to make decisions about its own defense. The issue remains unresolved, and tensions continue to rise.

POLICE FIRE ON LONDON DEMONSTRATORS

A police officer was injured and several protesters were arrested during a demonstration in London today. The protesters were calling for greater police accountability and reform. Tensions between protesters and police officers escalated quickly, leading to the use of tear gas and rubber bullets.

AFGHANISTAN

The conflict in Afghanistan continues to escalate, with reports of heavy fighting and casualties on both sides. The situation remains unstable, and the international community is calling for a diplomatic solution to the conflict.

KABUL TIMES
LAOTIAN CRISIS

According to Western sources, right-wing factions have evacuated the northwest provincial capital of Phonsavan and that the city has been occupied by the Pathet Lao forces. It is not clear how the situation is developing. There are no details available from the neutral cease-fire ended last year in Phonsavan, which is traditionally a pro-communist province.

Two years ago the internal situation in Laos was quiet as the rival groups reconciled under the terms of the neutral cease-fire. But the conflict between the Pathet Lao and the right-wing group continues.

The dissatisfaction in Phonsavan has created a situation that could develop into another major conflict.

The Big Powers then decided to call a new international conference at Geneva. This conference was attended by the neutral countries interested in the peace negotiations. The conference will be held in Phonsavan as was the previous conference in 1962.

It is hoped that the conference will meet and discuss the situation in Phonsavan and the entire region.
