HUMANITARIAN WORK OF
RED CRESCENT SOCIETY
A GLANCE

The following is the text of the statement submitted for the Press and Information Office of the International Federation of the Red Crescent Societies, dated March 10, 1909:

The International Federation of the Red Crescent Societies was established in 1920 with the aim of coordinating the activities of member societies in the field of humanitarian aid. Since then, it has played a crucial role in providing assistance, especially in times of conflict and natural disasters. The work of the Red Crescent Societies is universally recognized for the help they provide to those affected by wars and natural disasters.

In the current global context, the role of the Red Crescent Societies is more critical than ever. They are working on the ground to provide emergency relief, including medical aid, food, shelter, and water, to populations affected by conflicts and natural disasters.

The work of the Red Crescent Societies is carried out in partnership with other humanitarian organizations and governments. It is crucial to ensure that the needs of the affected populations are met in a timely and effective manner. The International Federation of the Red Crescent Societies urges all parties involved in conflicts to respect the principles of humanitarian law and to allow the work of the Red Crescent Societies to continue unabated.

The work of the Red Crescent Societies is supported by contributions from individuals, corporations, and governments around the world. These contributions help to fund the operations of the Red Crescent Societies, enabling them to provide the necessary assistance to those in need.

The Red Crescent Societies are committed to continue their work towards a world free of disasters and conflicts, where all people can live in peace and security.

U.N. CHARTER REVISION

The Acting U.N. Secretary General, Haile Runold, has called for a special session of the General Assembly to discuss the revision of the U.N. Charter.

The U.N. Charter was adopted in 1945 and has been amended a few times since then. However, there is a growing consensus among experts that the Charter needs to be revised to reflect the changes in the global political landscape.

The revision process is expected to address a range of issues, including the representation of member states in the Security Council, the role of the U.N. in international conflicts, and the protection of human rights.

The special session of the General Assembly is expected to take place in 2023. It is hoped that the process will lead to a more inclusive and effective U.N. Charter that can guide the organization in the 21st century.

South West Africa: A Danger To Peace

By M. MANDELL

The South African Prime Minister has indicated that the country's internal discrimination policies need to be revised.

The country's racial policies have been a source of conflict for many years, leading to international pressure to address the issue. The prime minister's statement is likely to be a stepping stone towards more inclusive policies.

The issue of apartheid has been a point of contention for many years. The South African government has been accused of maintaining a system of racial segregation, which violates the rights of its citizens.

The prime minister's statement is a significant step towards addressing the issue, and it is hoped that it will lead to a more inclusive and harmonious society in the future.

A Prosperous Corner In Afghanistan Being Rebuilt

By MIR HUSAIN SHAH

In the southwestern corner of the country, a prosperous corner is being rebuilt as part of the reconstruction efforts.

The area has been affected by conflict in recent years, leading to the destruction of many buildings. However, with the support of international aid agencies, the region is being rebuilt.

The reconstruction efforts are focused on the rehabilitation of the local economy and the provision of basic services to the population.

The region is rich in natural resources, including minerals and agricultural land. The reconstruction efforts are expected to enhance the area's economic prospects.

The ongoing efforts are a testament to the resilience of the people of Afghanistan and their determination to build a better future for their children.
