Algerian Nationalists & Europeans Begin Talks

ALGIERS, June 2, (Reuters)—The O.A.S. has apparently halted its terror campaign—for the next few days.

The "truce" has been declared while preliminary talks are held between Europeans and Moslem nationalists on the future of Europeans in Algeria.

European and Moslem sources confirmed yesterday that meetings already taken place between representatives of M. Abbé Tahhan Pasha, Moslem President of the Algerian Provisional Executive, and Europeans.

Moslem sources said the meetings were being held with the co-operation of the Algerian Provisional Government in Tunis, many of whose members are concerned over the unexpected and large exodus of Europeans from Algeria.

One Moslem told the O.A.S. that West Algeria is to develop in a second Tunis which he said, had gone into a steady decline since the Europeans left.

Some Moslems believe that M. Parsi is trying to build a third force to mediate between the Europeans who remain and the National Liberation Army (NLA) who have fought for years.

According to Moslem nationalists, many of the field commanders were dissatisfied with the Evian Cease-Fire Agreement and considered they should resist the European powers.
