Soviets To Help Formulate Afghanistan's Third Five Year Plan, Joint Communique Says

KABUL, May 1—The Soviet government has agreed to send experts to help Afghanistan in efforts to draw up its third five-year development plan.

According to the joint communique issued yesterday in Kabul and Moscow, the Soviet Prime Minister, Mr. Dzhungar Yousuf, will visit the Soviet Union at an early date, during his stay in Moscow, and will confer with his counterpart, Mr. Leonid Brezhnev, during the two-week visit in May. The two leaders will discuss ways to improve economic cooperation between the two countries and will also agree to consider joint ventures in various fields of mutual interest. The joint communique also stated that the two leaders agreed to set up a joint committee to prepare a joint five-year plan for economic development.

Premier Dr. Yousuf Returns From Ten Day Visit To USSR

KABUL, May 1—Premier Dr. Mohammad Yousuf arrived in Kabul at 8:35 p.m. yesterday after a 10-day official visit to the USSR. Dr. Yousuf had gone to the Soviet Union on April 11 at the invitation of Premier Leonid Brezhnev of the USSR. He was greeted at Kabul International Airport by President Mohammad Djaysh, the Prime Minister and President of the Supreme Soviet.

During the ten-day stay in the Soviet Union, the Prime Minister held talks with the Soviet leaders in Moscow and visited the capitals of Ukraine and Uzbekistan.

The Prime Minister is expected to return to Kabul today. During his stay in Moscow, the Prime Minister and President of the Supreme Soviet are expected to meet with the Soviet leaders.

Dr. Anas Returns From Indonesia

KABUL, May 1—Dr. Mohammad Anas, the Afghan diplomat who returned to Kabul on Thursday, after a year's absence to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Bandung Conference, said that the ten principles outlined by 29 developing countries at the conference in Africa, ten years ago, have provided a powerful impetus to the development of the countries of the world.

The Premier Minister said that the ten principles outlined by the 29 developing countries have provided a powerful impetus to the development of the countries of the world. The ten principles include support for the independence and sovereignty of all countries, the non-interference of foreign countries in the internal affairs of other countries, and the peaceful settlement of disputes.

The Premier Minister said that there should be a non-interference of foreign countries in the internal affairs of other countries, and the peaceful settlement of disputes. The ten principles have provided a powerful impetus to the development of the countries of the world.

The Art of Gerry-Mandering

By Beatrice Kaeli

Before I get a round up of the national political scene in the country as it is, I must first – and foremost – give a description of what a child is.

From the political point of view, a child is the most important political figure in the country. An ideal child is a Politician-Neanderthal who will either be a Politician-Neanderthal or a Politician-Neanderthal. Politicians are the minority group. Radio's Vital Role

Radio plays a vital role in the development of a country. It is a powerful tool in educating the masses, spreading information, and providing entertainment. The government of Afghanistan has been making efforts to increase the number of radio stations and improve the quality of programming.

However, the lack of access to modern technology and the limited reach of radio stations pose challenges to the government's efforts. The government has been working on increasing the number of transmitters and improving the quality of radio broadcasts.

The role of radio in education is also significant. It is a medium that can reach distant communities and provide education to those who cannot afford to attend schools.

Despite these challenges, radio remains an important medium for communication and education in Afghanistan.

Arabs in Israel

The Arab community in Israel is facing various challenges. The government of Israel has been implementing policies that have led to the displacement of Arab communities. The Arab community in Israel needs to be supported and protected.

The Arab community has been facing discrimination and exclusion from political and social life in Israel. The government needs to work towards creating an inclusive society where all citizens are treated equally.

The government of Israel should ensure that the rights of the Arab community are protected and that they have equal access to education, employment, and all other opportunities.

Needing To Elect Responsible Parliament

No elections have been published since 1927, and last announced for a vote in 1956, at which time Zahir’s candidate was returned to the Senate. A new Constitution was adopted in 1964, which provided for a bicameral legislature. The constitution has been amended several times since then.

The current Parliament is the Wolesi Jirga (Lower House), consisting of 102 members, and the Meshrano Jirga (Upper House), consisting of 10 members. The President of Afghanistan is also the Head of State, and is elected by the Wolesi Jirga for a five-year term.

The election process in Afghanistan is marked by controversy and uncertainty, with allegations of fraud and corruption often reported. The lack of a free and fair election has been a major challenge for the Afghan government, and has contributed to a lack of legitimacy and trust in the political system.

Political parties are not formally registered in Afghanistan, and political activity is often conducted in a more informal, secretive manner. This has led to a lack of political competition and a concentration of power in the hands of a few individuals.

The Afghan Ministry of Interior is responsible for election administration, but has been criticized for its lack of transparency and accountability. The election process is also often marred by violence and intimidation, with candidates and voters facing threats and attacks.

Despite these challenges, the Afghan government has made efforts to improve the electoral process in recent years, including the adoption of a new election law in 2014. However, the effectiveness of these efforts has been questioned, and there remains a need for continued improvement in the electoral process in Afghanistan.

The election system is currently under review by the Afghan government, with a new election law expected to be adopted in the near future. This new law is expected to address some of the challenges faced by the current system, and to provide a more transparent and accountable electoral process.

The Afghan government has also been working to increase voter turnout, with a focus on increasing participation among women and youth. However, the level of voter turnout remains low, with many Afghans still choosing not to participate in elections.

The future of the Afghan political system is uncertain, with questions about the sustainability of democratic institutions, and the ability of the government to deliver on its promises to the Afghan people.

Preparation For Election

Now that the election law has been published, we have to start preparing for the election. This will involve ensuring that the election process is transparent, that the right to vote is respected, and that the democratic principles are upheld.

We need to work with the election commission to ensure that the election process is fair and just. This will involve working with the election commission to ensure that the electoral roll is accurate and up-to-date, and that the election process is transparent.

We also need to work with the media to ensure that the election process is widely reported, and that the democratic principles are upheld.

The election process is a vital part of our democracy, and we must ensure that it is conducted in a transparent and accountable manner.

Congressional Actions Give Johnson Authority To Shape Strategy In Vietnam

President Johnson is known to have more influence in the Senate than in the House, but the Senate's newest majority leader, Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., is likely to be more powerful than his predecessor. The Senate, in effect, has given the President a free hand in foreign policy, and the House, while expressing its approval, is likely to have a more critical role in the future.

The Senate's support of the President's plans is significant because it gives him the authority to take action without a formal vote. The House, on the other hand, may have difficulty in blocking the President's actions, especially if there is a strong desire for a prompt decision.

The President's actions are likely to be more direct and effective than those of the past, because he will have the support of a majority of the Senate. This support is likely to be critical in the future, especially if the President faces opposition from other Congressmen.

The President's actions are likely to be more direct and effective than those of the past, because he will have the support of a majority of the Senate. This support is likely to be critical in the future, especially if the President faces opposition from other Congressmen.

A number of factors contributed to the Senate's support of the President's actions. Security Council Sends Envoy To Santo Domingo, Requests Both Sides To State Views

The United States was being deflated in Friday's Security Council meeting on West Germany's admission of guilt for the murder of twenty two New York State citizens in Munich, when a New York delegate reported that he needed ten years to prepare his case for the urgent encounter. Mr. President, Mr. Secretary, Mr. Chairman, the ad-hoc group of which I am a member, is being compelled to agree that the clear and just decision of this Council is the only way to end this conflict and to maintain peace in the world.

Mr. President, we are prepared to make a new start in a world of peace, security, and justice. Those who have been the beneficiaries of the peace of the United Nations must be prepared to assume the responsibilities of the peace of the United Nations. We are prepared to enter into discussions with the Government of West Germany, to discuss the question of compensation for the innocent victims of the Munich tragedy. We are prepared to discuss the question of the United Nations' responsibility in the maintenance of peace and security. We are prepared to discuss the question of the United Nations' responsibility in the maintenance of peace and security.

Soviets To Double Indian Assistance During Fourth Plan

The Soviet government has announced its intention to double its assistance to India during the Fourth Five-Year Plan, which is likely to be declared in September. The Soviet aid, which will be the largest ever by any country to India, will include long-term credits for the purchase of goods and services. The agreement will also provide for the construction of a dam in a flood-prone area in the north of the country.

Peace Talks Must Include Viet Cong, Sihanouk Says

Phnom Penh, May 15 (VNA)- Cambodian Premier Prince Norodom Sihanouk said yesterday that peace talks with South Vietnam must include the Viet Cong, or National Liberation Front, which controls large areas of South Vietnam.

The Prince described the talks as "in bad shape" and said that the Viet Cong was not allowed to participate in any of the previous talks. The Prince said he was willing to sit down with the Viet Cong on the ground within the framework of the Geneva Agreements, which ended the war in 1975.

Ziai Stresses Need For Broad-Minded, Tolerant Islamic Educational System

BY PROFESSOR KHALIL

The question of education has always been of paramount importance in the history of Islamic countries. Education, in this context, is not merely the teaching of religious knowledge but also includes the training of students in the use of rational and scientific methods in all fields of human activity. The educational system of a country is a reflection of its social and economic structure, and it must be designed to meet the needs of the society.

The Islamic educational system, as envisioned by the Prophet Muhammad, was based on the principles of justice, compassion, and tolerance. These principles are still relevant today and need to be incorporated into the modern educational system.

In his article, Professor Khalil stresses the need for a broad-minded and tolerant approach to education. He argues that education should be based on the principles of justice, compassion, and tolerance. He also advocates for the integration of modern science and technology into the educational system, while preserving the values of the Islamic tradition.

The article concludes by emphasizing the importance of education in the development of a society and its role in shaping the future of the Islamic world.

Chinese Atomic Test

China And U.S. Express Their Views

The Chinese government has definitively announced that a special atomic test has been conducted in another proof of its capability to build atomic weapons. This follows upon the disclosures made by the United States, China has now demonstrated that it possesses the scientific and technological capabilities necessary to build atomic weapons. As such, it is now capable of constructing a bomb. This is a significant development in the nuclear arms race and could potentially alter the balance of power in the region.

The Minister of External Affairs, Mr. Chagla, has said in New Delhi that Pakistan should also be annexed to the treaty. The Minister further said that the same should also be done to all other countries that have not signed the treaty. He added that this is to ensure that all countries are subject to international law and that the treaty is not just confined to certain countries.

The Chinese government has been consistent in its position that it will not make any concessions on the nuclear issue. The Chinese Prime Minister, Mr. Zhou Enlai, has said that the country is committed to peaceful coexistence with all nations and that it will not use nuclear weapons unless it is attacked. The Chinese government has also stated that it will not allow its territory to be used by others for nuclear purposes.

The Minister of External Affairs further said that the onus is on India to take the lead in this matter and that it should initiate steps towards a global nuclear disarmament. He added that India should also be a part of any negotiations on this issue.

Disarmament Commission Delegates Urge Participation By China In Negotiations

The Chinese government has been invited to participate in the disarmament negotiations by the United Nations. This is a significant development as it indicates that the Chinese government is willing to engage with the international community on this issue. The Chinese government has been consistent in its position that it will not participate in any negotiations that do not lead to a comprehensive ban on nuclear weapons.

Disarmament Commission delegates have urged China to participate in the negotiations. The Chinese government has been reluctant to participate in these negotiations in the past, but the recent developments in the nuclear arms race have made it clear that the situation is urgent and that China cannot afford to remain on the sidelines.

Electoral Law:

NEED TO EDUCATE THE ELECTORATE

Children, in this day and age, are the future of our society and play a crucial role in shaping the world. Having a great impact on the future, the education of children is vital. This is evident in the present-day world, where children's views and opinions are increasingly valued.

However, there are many children who do not have access to education. In many parts of the world, particularly in developing countries, educational opportunities are limited. This is a significant problem that needs to be addressed.

In order to ensure that children are educated, it is important to have a fair electoral system. This will allow children to have a say in their future and make informed decisions.

This can be achieved by providing children with the necessary knowledge and understanding of the electoral process. By doing so, children will be able to make informed decisions and contribute to the democratic process.

In conclusion, the education of children is crucial for the development and success of any nation. By educating children on the electoral process, we can ensure that they have a voice in their future and help to shape the world for the better.

Swiss Writer Views Requirements To Be Met

In Extending International Assistance

Swiss writer, Prof. Dr. Sabahuddin, has recently written an article in the KABUL TIMES expressing his views on international assistance. He argues that in order to meet the requirements for extending international assistance, certain conditions must be met.

Firstly, the writer stresses the importance of providing education to children. He believes that education is the key to unlocking the potential of children and helping them to make informed decisions.

Secondly, the writer emphasizes the need for countries to be more transparent in their assistance programs. This will help to ensure that the assistance is being used effectively and efficiently.

Finally, the writer calls for a stronger focus on the needs of those who are suffering from natural disasters. The writer argues that in order to help these people, we need to provide them with the necessary resources and support.

In conclusion, Prof. Dr. Sabahuddin's article provides valuable insights into the requirements for extending international assistance. His calls for education, transparency, and a focus on the needs of those who are suffering from natural disasters, offer a blueprint for how we can help to make a positive difference in the world.

UK Leaders Want Independent Rhodesia On Basis Acceptable To People As Whole

The present regime in Salisbury has certainly been deficient in the constitutional matter. However, the British government should not be allowed to escape its responsibilities in this matter. The British government should take a firm stand and demand that the inhabitants of the capital control the constitution. All political developments in the country must be examined, and all political parties must be consulted. The country must be governed in a way that is acceptable to the people as a whole.

Price Changes And Their Repercussions
by addul Rehman

Price increases and their repercussions are always an issue of concern. The current economic situation has brought about significant changes in the prices of goods and services. Although these changes may be necessary for the long-term health of the economy, they can have short-term implications.

There is a known fact that when the prices of goods and services increase, the cost of living for the average person also increases. This can lead to a decrease in purchasing power, as people may be unable to afford the same items they could before. This can have a ripple effect on the economy as a whole, as it can lead to decreased spending and a decrease in economic activity.

Considering the current economic situation, it is important to understand the factors that contribute to price increases. These factors can include supply and demand, costs of production, and government policies. Understanding these factors can help individuals and businesses make informed decisions about their purchasing and production strategies.

It is also important to consider the broader implications of price increases. These can include increased costs for businesses, as they may need to raise their prices in order to maintain their profit margins. This can lead to increased costs for consumers, as businesses may pass these costs on to them.

In conclusion, it is clear that price increases and their repercussions are a complex issue with a variety of factors at play. It is important for individuals and businesses to understand these factors and make informed decisions in order to navigate this challenging economic environment.

World Food Programme in Afghanistan

News Analysis:
Dominican Crisis Raises Alternatives Of U.S. Going Alone Or Joint OAS Action

Whatever else may stem from the news of the United Nations World Food Programme’s ambitions to deliver 300,000 tons of rice to Afghanistan this year, the United Nations’ work in the country is by no means new. The first World Food Programme in Afghanistan was established in 1961, and since then, the United Nations has been providing food assistance to Afghans in need.

The United Nations has also been working with the Afghan government to improve the country’s food security, particularly through the National Food Security Program, which aims to ensure that 60% of Afghanistan’s population have access to a sufficient quantity of food. Despite these efforts, however, food insecurity remains a major challenge for many Afghans, especially in rural areas.

The World Food Programme (WFP) in Afghanistan is a key player in the effort to address food insecurity in the country. In 2022, the WFP received pledges of $1.4 billion, the largest ever donations to the Programme. The WFP is working with the Afghan government, local partners, and communities to deliver food assistance to those in need, including women, children, and vulnerable groups.

This year, the WFP is aiming to reach an estimated 1.2 million people with food assistance, including 250,000 in the Aynan area alone. The Programme is also working to improve the availability of food in the country by supporting local food production and trade.

In addition to food assistance, the WFP is supporting the Afghan government’s efforts to improve the country’s infrastructure and fight corruption. The Programme is working to help ensure that food aid is delivered efficiently and effectively, and that it reaches those who need it most.

The WFP is also working to support local economic development by helping to create jobs and increase access to markets for small-scale farmers and other food producers. This work is crucial to the long-term stability and prosperity of Afghanistan.

Though the United Nations’ work in Afghanistan is significant, it is not without its challenges. The country is still recovering from years of conflict, and many Afghans continue to struggle to meet their basic needs. But through the efforts of the WFP and other organizations, there is hope for a better future for Afghanistan and its people.
