U.N.I.P., Favors Break-Up Of Rhodesian Federation

LODZ, Poland, Nov. 12.—The ruling United National Independence Party of South Africa here today welcomed the statement by F. E. M. Grove, UN Secretary-General, that the Southern Rhodesia situation was "one of the most important problems today." The UN official had earlier said that the Rhodesian issue "should lead to a fresh approach by all concerned, including the Rhodesians themselves," to bring about a "real solution." The Rhodesian issue had "become a regional problem," the UN official said, and was now "a matter of international concern." The UN Secretary-General also noted that the Rhodesian issue was "one of the most difficult problems" in the world today.

U.S.A. To Insist On U.S.S.R. Removing Jet Bombers From Cuba

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. (AP)—President Kennedy's three-week European tour will probably solidify his position in the U.S. by demonstrating to the American people that he is a strong leader, capable of handling foreign affairs on a par with the great powers of the world. The trip will also give him an opportunity to show his skills in negotiating with other nations. Finally, it will give him time to prepare for his meeting with Khrushchev in Moscow, where the fate of the U.S.S.R. will be decided.

So long as the Soviet Union remains a superpower, there will be no peace in Europe. It is up to President Kennedy to make sure that the U.S. remains strong enough to meet any challenge that may come its way.

CONCEPT OF ABSORPTIVE CAPACITY IN PLANNING

By M. Reza Fathali

IT is true that the concept of absorptive capacity is increasingly being mentioned in the field of development planning. However, it is only one of the variables that affect the success or failure of a development project. The absorptive capacity of a project is the ability of the project to absorb new knowledge and ideas and use them to improve its performance. The higher the absorptive capacity of a project, the more likely it is to succeed.

In a project, absorptive capacity is measured by the following factors:

1. The ability of the project to identify and absorb new knowledge.
2. The ability of the project to use that knowledge to improve its performance.
3. The ability of the project to adapt and adjust to changes.

This concept has become increasingly important in the field of development planning, as the success of a project depends not only on the technical aspects, but also on the ability of the project to absorb new knowledge and ideas.

In conclusion, the concept of absorptive capacity is a crucial factor in the success of a development project. It is important for project managers to understand this concept and work to increase the absorptive capacity of their projects.

Three Questions Confront U.S.A.

In Reaching Accord On Cuba

The United States is facing the necessity of finding a solution to the current crisis in Cuba. The issue of the United States embargo against Cuba has been a source of conflict for many years. The United States has imposed an embargo on Cuba since 1960, and the Cuban government has been forced to negotiate with the United States to reach an agreement.

The United States has been working towards reaching an agreement with Cuba for several years. The United States has been trying to negotiate a peaceful solution to the crisis, and has been working with other countries to find a solution.

Improved Roads And Better Traffic Regulations

Facilities to prevent long and dangerous delays are being studied in connection with new Marketing Department. All these facilities include some consideration of limited company's traffic work and other facilities. The improved roads and better traffic regulations are expected to bring about a considerable improvement in the operation of the company's traffic work and other facilities.

CUBA ISSUE

The Secretary-General of the United Nations has issued a statement regarding the situation in Cuba. The Secretary-General has expressed his concern over the situation in Cuba and has called for a peaceful solution to the crisis. The Secretary-General has also called for the United Nations to play an active role in the resolution of the crisis.
