BOMB TALKS

As the December 11 deadline for the Nuclear Test Ban Conference to make an agreement is drawing near, there has been an increase in the number of reports that the Soviet Union is still unwilling to allow any inspection of its information in the course of the conference.

There is no need for such decisions to be made, it has been argued by one of the conference's organizers.

De Gaulle's 'New Look' At The Defence Forces

One and a half months before French President Charles de Gaulle's return from an official visit to Moscow, the French Defence Minister, General de Gaulle, has announced a radical review of French military policy.

One of the main objectives of this new policy is to increase the readiness of France's armed forces to take part in international operations.

The French Defence Minister has also announced that the French army will be reorganized into three military commands: one for Europe, one for the Mediterranean and one for the Sahara.

The new military structure is expected to be in place by 1965.

The French government has also announced that it will increase its military budget by 10% next year.

The new policy has been greeted with mixed reactions.

Some critics have argued that the new policy will lead to an increase in military spending and that it is not necessary in light of the current peace negotiations.

However, others have welcomed the new policy, saying that it is necessary to maintain France's role as a European power.

PRESS AT A GLANCE

U.S. - The United Nations General Assembly on Tuesday turned down a resolution calling for an immediate end to all acts of violence and aggression in the Middle East.

The resolution, sponsored by the Soviet Union, was defeated by a 60 to 56 vote. The United States, along with France and Britain, voted against the resolution.

JAPAN - The government has announced that it will send a delegation to the United Nations General Assembly to discuss the situation in the Middle East.

The delegation, which will be headed by Foreign Minister Takeo Miki, is scheduled to arrive in New York on December 18.

Development Plans Of 20-Year-Old Faculty Of Science

The Faculty of Science was established in 1942 and is fully equipped and is now being used by the students of the Faculty of Science. The Department of Mathematics and Chemistry is the oldest department in the Faculty of Science. The year 1962 saw the establishment of a new department in the Faculty of Science, namely the Department of Physics.

The basic function of the Faculty of Science was to provide education in science, particularly in physics, chemistry and biology, and to prepare students for careers in science.

The faculty has also been instrumental in the development of research facilities in the country.

Sarah Bush for Furthering Peace and Security

Sarah Bush, 19, a student at Mount Holyoke College, visited the Soviet Union as a Peace Corps volunteer. She spoke to students and faculty at Moscow State University and the Institute of World Economy and International Relations. She also visited the Kremlin and the Red Square.

The American delegation, led by Senator Sam Nunn, met with Soviet officials to discuss issues including nuclear disarmament and human rights. The delegation also visited the Chernobyl nuclear power plant, which suffered a major accident in 1986.

The event was significant as it marked the first time a US Congressional delegation had visited the Soviet Union following the fall of the Berlin Wall and the collapse of the Soviet Union.
