Afghanistan's Views On The UN Public Information Activities

The following is a statement read by the Press Officer at the United Nations press conference in Kabul on Tuesday, May 25, 1966.

The statement was made by the Secretary-General of the United Nations, who expressed the views of the General Assembly on the situation in Afghanistan.

In respect to assistance from the United Nations for the public information activities in Afghanistan, the Secretary-General stated that the General Assembly had adopted a resolution in which it called upon the Secretary-General to report to the Assembly on the situation in Afghanistan and to make recommendations for assistance.

The Secretary-General noted that the United Nations had been providing assistance to the Afghan government in the form of technical advice and training for public information officers.

The Secretary-General also noted that the Afghanistan government had recently signed an agreement with the United Nations for the provision of training for public information officers.

The Secretary-General concluded his statement by expressing the hope that the United Nations could continue to provide assistance to the Afghan government in the form of technical advice and training.

THE PRESS AND RADIO AT A GLANCE

The daily news is broadcast in radio and television in Kabul and other major cities. The Afghan television network covers most of the country, and there are several radio stations, including the Kabul Radio, which broadcasts in both Dari and English.

U.S.A. To Send Military Mission To The Congo

In his message to the United Nations, the President of the United States called for an immediate withdrawal of all United Nations peacekeeping forces from the Congo.

The President noted that the United Nations had been providing peacekeeping forces to the Congo since 1960, and that the situation in the country had worsened in recent months due to the presence of these forces.

The President also noted that the United States was providing military aid to the Congo, and that the country was a strategic ally of the United States.

A new UN report said that the situation in the Congo was improving, and that the United Nations peacekeeping forces were no longer needed.

The report also noted that the United States was considering sending a military mission to the Congo to assist in the implementation of the peace agreement.

No doubt that the other problem of the city is to have regular police and control. We think now is the time for the UN to come closer to the people and help them.

The UN mission will be tasked with addressing the needs of UN troops, and it will work closely with the Congolese police and military forces to ensure the safety of the UN personnel.

The UN mission will also help to improve the overall situation in the Congo, and it will work to promote peace and stability in the country.

The UN mission will be led by General Louis DeLisle, who is the current head of the UN Police and Military Forces in the Congo.

Department of Energy

The report also noted that the United States is working on developing a new energy policy for the Congo, and that the country is a potential source of energy for the United States.

The United States is considering the possibility of building a nuclear power plant in the Congo, and it is also considering the possibility of building a hydroelectric power plant in the country.

The report also noted that the United States is working on a plan to provide economic assistance to the Congo, and that it is considering the possibility of providing loans to the country.

The report also noted that the United States is working on a plan to improve the educational system in the Congo, and that it is considering the possibility of providing educational assistance to the country.
