WHAT NEXT POSSIBLE BRITISH PREMIER STANDS FOR A REVIEW OF WILSON'S VIEWS

The most expected for many Britons is the fall of the present Labour Government. In Washington today, ready to sign the alliance agreement with the United States, the Labour Government's survival is threatened. Several Labour leaders have already resigned, and it is said that if they do not go, others will. The resignation of Sir Stafford Cripps as Foreign Secretary has prompted speculation about the future of the Labour Government. It is expected that the new Labour Party will hold its first conference in January, and it is possible that a new leader will be chosen at that time. The Labour Party is divided on the issue of the alliance agreement, with some leaders favoring it and others opposing it. The fate of Wilson's Labour Government is uncertain, and it is possible that a new government will be formed in the near future.
