The American envoy, in a statement to the press, said he had received a similar assurance from the government of China. He also disclosed that he had held talks with the Chinese about the Geneva Agreements and the situation in Southeast Asia.

Green said that the United States and China had agreed to work together to ensure a peaceful settlement of the situation in Laos and to bring about an end to the conflict there.

The Soviet Union, however, had not yet given any indication of its willingness to abide by the Geneva Agreements.

Green stressed that the United States would continue to support the neutralist forces in Laos and to assist them in their struggle for peace and stability.

Civil War End

In Yemen

Yemeni Prime Minister Sheikh Salah al-Badawi announced today that the civil war in Yemen had ended. He said that representatives of all groups involved in the conflict had agreed to a cease-fire and the withdrawal of all forces from the areas under control of the other side.

The prime minister said that the government had accepted the principle of a negotiated settlement and was ready to hold talks with the opposition to work out a final agreement.

It was reported that the opposition had also agreed to the principle of a negotiated settlement and was willing to participate in the talks.

Arab Unity Talks

Saudi Arabia

ARAB UNITY TALKS

CABO, April 12—(Reuters) — Arab Unity talks between Saudi Arabia, Egypt, and Jordan have been suspended indefinitely. The talks, which were held in Cairo on April 11, failed to reach a consensus on the issue of a unified Arab government.

The agreement reached in Cairo was that the unity talks would continue in Amman, Jordan with a view to establishing a unified Arab government.

The meeting was attended by representatives of the three countries. The talks were aimed at finding a solution to the conflict between Egypt and Saudi Arabia over the status of the Gaza Strip.

Saudi Arabia is opposed to the establishment of a unified Arab government, while Egypt favors the idea.

A Full Statement

The representatives of the three countries said that they would continue to hold talks on the issue of a unified Arab government.

They added that they would also continue to work towards resolving the conflict between Egypt and Saudi Arabia.
The Afghan-American Central Council (AACC) under its president, Dr. Ali Reza, has published a report that the Afghan government should support the development of Afghan communities in the United States. The report, titled "A Framework for Afghan Community Development," outlines strategies for fostering Afghan-American relations and promoting Afghan culture and heritage. It highlights the importance of strengthening social and economic ties between the two communities. The council advocates for the establishment of cultural centers, language schools, and community events to enhance understanding and cooperation. The report also emphasizes the need for Afghan Americans to engage with local communities to promote mutual respect and cooperation. The AACC calls on Afghan communities to work together to address common challenges and to build a strong foundation for future generations.
