How Fire Destroyed 115 Houses In Small Mountain Town Of Kajah?

JALALABAD June 16—The small town of Kajah situated at an altitude of 5,000 feet to the south-west of Jalalabad suffered heavy loss of property due to the conflagration which took place on June 15. 115 houses and 95 shops were gutted.

Mr. Abdul Hamid, the Commissioner of Kajah, declared that the fire spread to a wall of houses. It started when the fire first broke out, which did not receive any help from the villagers. Mr. Hamid also said that the fire was started by a railway employee who was on duty.

Mr. Hamid also said that the railway employee was questioned and was found to be innocent.

Tass Denies British Paper's Charges

MOSCOW June 17: The Tass news agency Monday denied that former Soviet Marshal Ivanov, who arrived in London, was accused of lying in a British tabloid. According to Tass, Ivanov's visit was organized by the British Foreign Office as part of the visit of the British Foreign Secretary to Moscow.

Radio Receivers

The British government has decided to allocate £10,000 a month to the British Embassy in Moscow for the purchase of radio receivers. The allocation is to be used for the purchase of 10,000 radio receivers to be distributed among the British Embassy in Moscow.

Heard from Ivanov's simplicity.

Mr. Ivanov had suggested to him as the Deputy Minister to the former British cabinet to take a new approach to the Cuban crisis.

An article in a British newspaper which was published in London last week stated that former Soviet Marshal Ivanov had been accused of lying in the Cuban crisis.

The LANDSCAPE PRESS

At A GLANCE

The change in the political climate is reflected in the changes in the language of the news. The news is now filled with talk of peace and cooperation. This is a sign of the times, as atti- tudes are changing. People are becoming more open to new ideas and more willing to compromise. This change is evident in the news, where stories of cooperation and dialogue are being reported. Country leaders are meeting and discussing their differences, and there is a sense of hope for a better future. The world is moving towards a more peaceful and cooperative world, and this change is reflected in the news. The news is now filled with stories of cooperation and dialogue, and there is a sense of hope for a better future.
