The French Parliamentary delegation yesterday visited the Vatican to discuss the possibility of ratifying the Non-Proliferation Treaty. The delegation was led by Andre Bettencourt, the French Foreign Minister, and included Jean-Pierre Pessard, the Minister of Defense, and Jean-Claude Paye, the Minister of Agriculture.

The visit was part of the French government's efforts to ratify the treaty, which was signed in 1968 by 128 countries. The treaty aims to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons and to achieve disarmament.

The delegation included representatives of various government departments, including the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the Ministry of Defense, and the Ministry of Agriculture. They met with Pope Paul VI and other Vatican officials to discuss the treaty's implications for international security.

The French delegation was received by Pope Paul VI, who welcomed them and expressed his support for the treaty. The meeting lasted for several hours, and the delegates had a cordial exchange with the Pope.

The visit was seen as a significant step in the process of ratification, and it is hoped that the French government will soon ratify the treaty, which would strengthen the international efforts to prevent the proliferation of nuclear weapons.
RELEVANCE OF DEVELOPMENT TO DEMOCRACY

By YURI KULIKOV

There are ten basic questions which determine our mental attitude to the problem of development. And these questions are often asked by the heads of state and government, and the leaders of society.

1. What is the purpose of development? What is the goal of development? What is the end of development? Is the development a means to an end, or is it an end in itself?

2. What is the nature of development? Is it an organic process, or is it a mechanical process?

3. What is the scope of development? Is it a local, national, or international phenomenon?

4. What is the scale of development? Is it a small-scale, medium-scale, or large-scale phenomenon?

5. What is the timing of development? Is it an immediate, short-term, or long-term phenomenon?

6. What is the relationship between development and other phenomena? Is there a relationship between development and politics, economy, culture, society, or environment?

7. What is the impact of development on the future? Is the impact positive or negative?

8. What is the reaction of society to development? Is the reaction positive or negative?

9. What is the role of the individual in development? Is the individual a passive or active participant in development?

10. What is the role of the international community in development? Is the international community a passive or active participant in development?

TRAINING OF HORSES FOR "BUZKASHI"

By NABIZAI KHALIF

Horses trained for "Buzkashi" are prepared for the sport by training in early spring. This is designed to ensure that the horses are fit and ready for the main season.

1. "Buzkashi" is a traditional Afghan sport that involves horse-mounted riders chasing a goat or calf. The objective is to pick up the animal and carry it a certain distance.

2. Training of horses for "Buzkashi" includes a variety of exercises, such as lunging, trotting, and jumping.

3. The aim of the training is to build up the horse's strength and endurance, as well as to improve its agility and speed.

4. The training is focused on preparing the horse for the demands of the sport, including the ability to carry the weight of the rider and equipment.

5. The training is also aimed at building the horse's confidence and ability to work in a team with other horses.

6. The training is supervised by experienced trainers who are familiar with the sport and the needs of the horses.

U.S. Senate Rejects Goldwater Changes To Test Ban Treaty
The Senate yesterday rejected by 70 votes to 27 a proposal by Senator Goldwater to change the test ban treaty with the Soviet Union. The treaty, which prohibits the testing of nuclear weapons, was signed in 1963 and has been in effect since 1964.

The Senate's rejection of the Goldwater proposal is a victory for President Johnson and the administration. The President had been concerned that the proposal could undermine the effectiveness of the treaty and has been working to strengthen it.

Despite "CIA's"Plot Madame Nhu Still Has Confidence In U.S.A.
KABUL, Sept. 9.—Madame Nhu, the First Lady of South Vietnam, has expressed confidence in the United States despite reports of a plot by the CIA to overthrow her government.

The plot, as reported by the South Vietnamese media, alleged that the CIA was involved in a secret operation to overthrow Madame Nhu's regime. The reports have been denied by the United States government.

The statement is a sign of the continued tension between the United States and South Vietnam, where a military coup has recently taken place. The coup, supported by the United States, has been met with strong opposition from South Vietnam's government and international community.
