A BRIEF REVIEW ON STUDIES OF MANPOWER

KABUL TIMES

Problems of industrialization

The problems of industrialization in Afghanistan are significant and varied. One major issue is the lack of skilled labor in the country. This is not only a hindrance to the development of industry but also to the general economy of the nation. The government has been working on this problem for some time, but progress has been slow. The situation is worsened by the fact that many of the young people who could fill these positions have had the opportunity to get an education in other countries. This has led to some resentment among Afghan workers who feel that they are being left behind.

In addition, the government has been criticized for not doing enough to support the development of industries in the country. Many of the industries that are being built are not being used to their full potential due to lack of support from the government. This is a serious problem because it means that the country is not getting the full benefit of its industries.

Another problem is the lack of investment in research and development. This is a crucial area for any country that wants to develop its industries. Afghanistan has not been able to attract the level of investment that it needs to make progress in this area.

Despite these challenges, there is hope for the future. The government is working on a number of initiatives to address these issues. It is important for the country to continue to work on these problems and to develop its industries in order to create a better future for all Afghans.
