POLICY OF NON-ALIGNMENT HELPS THE WORLD PEACE SAYS CHINESE PREMIER

In an exclusive interview with the Peking Press Agency, Premier Chou En-lai of China has said that the policy of non-alignment helps the world peace and that China considers the principle of non-alignment to be a sound one.

In answering the question of the U.S. President’s call for a one-world-conference to deal with the various problems of today’s world, the Premier said that such a conference would be useful but that it must be united with the principle of non-alignment if it is to achieve its goals.

Premier Chou En-lai said that China was ready to cooperate with any country, rich or poor, in the development of the world economy under the principle of non-alignment. He added that China was interested in helping any country that would like to develop its own economy and that China was eager to develop trade and economic relations with any country that would like to develop its own economy.

Premier Chou En-lai said that the policy of non-alignment would enable China to develop its own economy and to improve the standard of living of its people. He added that China was ready to cooperate with any country, rich or poor, in the development of the world economy under the principle of non-alignment.
