Britain Has Contacted USSR
On Vietnam, Stewart Reports

LONDON, March 3, (Reuter).—
BRITAIN has been in touch with the Soviet government as a possible sponsor of a diplomatic mission to Vietnam, the Foreign Secretary, Michael Stewart, said last night.

He told the House of Commons that he was now awaiting the comments on certain views which the British Ambassador in Moscow, who communicated with the Soviet Union on February 13, Stewart was answering a question asked by David Ennals, a member of the ruling Labour party.

"I am now awaiting the comments on certain views which our Ambassador in Moscow communicated to the Soviet Union," Mr. Stewart said.

Britain and the Soviet Union are co-sponsors of a UN conference which ended the seven-year war in the former Indochina last year. Vietminh, Cambodia and Laos.

Earlier yesterday Stewart told the Commons that Britain and the Soviet Union had requested them to send a report of the outcome of the conference to Vietnam on the possibility of the fighting there in early February. Stewart said the report would be presented to the UN after the conference ended.

Observers generally believed that the announcement of a white paper on Indochina by the British government had sent a signal to the US that the British were also not willing to support American policies in Vietnam.

The implications of this announcement could not be minimized. The US is not only negotiating with the Vietminh but is also discussing the situation in Vietnam with the US intelligence agencies in South Vietnam.
