EIGHT UNAFFECTED NATIONS ASK EARLY NUCLEAR TEST BAN ACCORD, URGE SCIENTIFIC EXCHANGE

In an address to the Indian Parliament, the Prime Minister of India, Jawahar Lal Nehru, has called for an early nuclear test ban accord. He made this appeal during a debate on the foreign policy of the government. The Prime Minister said that the country could provide the necessary facilities for the development of nuclear power, but he added that it was up to the world to decide whether or not to use these facilities.

The Prime Minister also called for a moratorium on nuclear testing and urged all countries to cooperate in the peaceful uses of atomic energy. He said that the country had no intention of using nuclear weapons and that it would be willing to sign any treaty that would contribute to the realization of the dream of a world without nuclear weapons.

In his address, the Prime Minister also spoke about the need for greater scientific cooperation among nations. He said that the country had already contributed to the development of atomic energy and that it would be willing to contribute further in the future.

The appeal for an early test ban accord was also made by the Prime Ministers of Pakistan, the USSR, and China, as well as by the leaders of the United States, Britain, and France. The leaders of these countries have all called for an early test ban accord, and they have urged their governments to take action.

The leaders have also called for a moratorium on nuclear testing and for greater cooperation in the peaceful uses of atomic energy. They have said that the world must work together to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons and to ensure the safety of the people.

U Thant's Proposal

(U Thant was quoted in the New Delhi Pradesh, Sept. 12, as saying that the United Nations would give each country in the area a "guarantor" and that the United States and the U.S.S.R. would have "sovereignty" over a "buffer" zone within the cease-fire line of the United Nations.)

U Thant said the "Security Council might now use its new method of enlisting the help of local people in the area, and the Army and the United States Department of Defense would have a "buffer" zone within the cease-fire line of the United Nations.

The Secretary-General said no new meeting with the United States or the U.S.S.R. would take place until the Council had given over the cease-fire line to the United Nations, to which the United States and the U.S.S.R. would have a "buffer" zone.

The Secretary-General said the United States and the U.S.S.R. would have a "buffer" zone within the cease-fire line of the United Nations, to which the United States and the U.S.S.R. would have a "buffer" zone.

U Thant's proposal is to provide a "buffer" zone between the United States and the U.S.S.R. within the cease-fire line of the United Nations.
