However, for many individuals and companies, the benefits of a university education outweigh the costs. By investing in education, individuals and companies can increase their knowledge and skills, which can lead to greater job opportunities and higher salaries. This is especially true in today's competitive job market, where many employers require a degree from an accredited university.

Questions

Why is there a population explosion? The answer is not simple. The main reason for the increase in population is the growing availability of cheap food and medical care. However, there are also other factors, such as the decline in infant mortality and the increase in life expectancy. Why are the governments not attempting to control the population growth? Some governments have attempted to control population growth through various means, such as family planning programs and economic incentives. However, the effectiveness of these measures is limited. Why isn't there more job training available for the young people? The availability of job training depends on a variety of factors, such as the economic environment and the level of investment in education. While there is a growing need for job training, there are also limitations on the capacity of the education system to meet this demand.
